LONDON, PARIS ACT TO CARRY OUT PROMISES

Chamberlain Tells Hitler to Withdraw Military Action In Poland or British Will Fight; Premier Claims Fuehrer Had no Desire to Maintain Peace.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(UP)—France will duplicate British demands that German troops evacuate Polish territory, high French quarters said tonight.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON — (Passed Through British Censorship)—Prime Minister Chamberlain declared tonight that unless Germany would suspend aggressive action and withdraw her forces from Poland, Britain would unhesitatingly fulfill her obligations to Poland.

Chamberlain made the statement at an extraordinary session of parliament.

If the reply to this last British warning is not favorable, he said, the British ambassador to Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson, will be instructed to ask for his passport.

The prime minister said a bill would be introduced making the ages for military service between 18 and 41 years.

He began addressing the commons at 6:04 p. m. (12:04 p. m., Mansfield time) and finished at 6:30 p. m. (12:30 p. m.)

The prime minister said he did not suggest that the German reply "is likely to be otherwise" than unfavorable.

News of the German air raid on Warsaw came as he spoke.

Chamberlain declared:

"We shall stand at the bar of history knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe rests on the shoulders of one man—the German chancellor!"

The prime minister's statement came a few hours after Poland had called on Great Britain for help against Germany and after King George had signed an order for complete mobilization of the British army, navy and air force.

Charges Peace Ignored.

Chamberlain reviewed the crisis and the notes exchanged by Great Britain and Germany and asserted:

"One passage from the recent communications, dated August 30, showed easily that the final clash might have been avoided had there been at least a desire on the part of the German government to arrive at a peaceful settlement."

Chamberlain continued: "The communication said, 'The British government most strongly urge that both parties should undertake during the negotiations that no aggressive military movement should take place.' . . . The Polish government replied instantly, on August 31, saying they would prepare on a reciprocal basis to give the formal guaranty. . . .

"We never had any reply from the German government to that suggestion, one which, if it had been followed, might have saved the catastrophe which took place this morning."

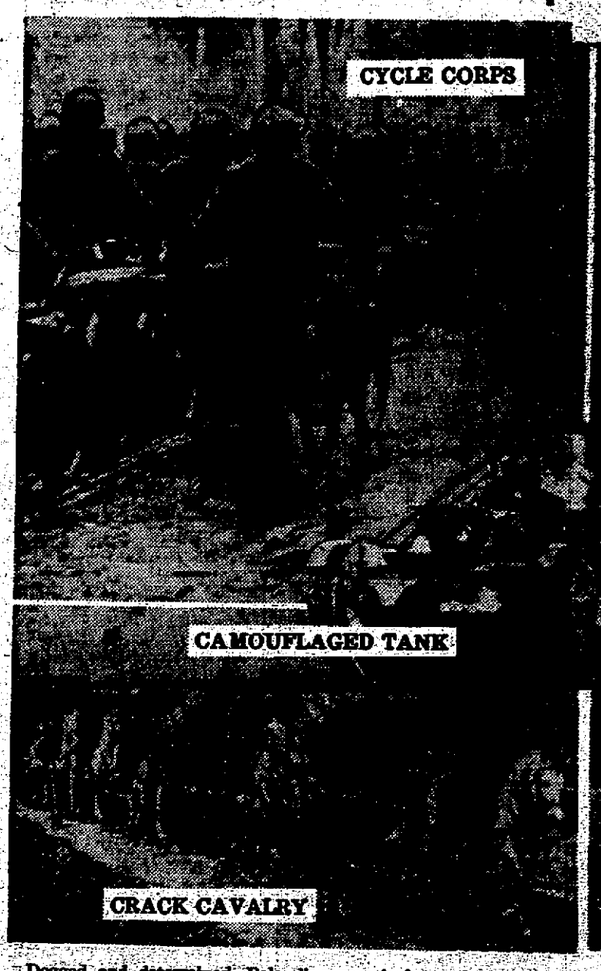
Poland Pins Her Hopes On These Defenses



Dogged and determined, Poland's army is her sole hope of defense in the undeclared war with Germany. Men, guns, tanks and planes—they are the weapons on which Poland depends. Her army is well equipped, though not as well equipped as the German juggernaut which was attacking on three fronts today.

German troops and warplanes have invaded Poland.

Poland has called for aid from Britain and France.

King George VI signed an order in council for complete British army, navy and airforce mobilization.

France has ordered general mobilization.

The British parliament has been called to meet this afternoon.

An authorized statement in London indicated parliament's purpose would be to give force to Britain's decision to fulfill her pledge to help Poland.

Official sources in Warsaw said Polish cities had been bombed, German troops were moving in heavy concentrations toward Poland's frontier from East Prussia and the border elsewhere had been violated.

So far war is undeclared.

Adolf Hitler this morning spoke to a hurried session of the reichstag.

Previously, Danzig's Nazi leader, Albert Forster, declared the Free City a part of Germany. Hitler accepted Danzig into the reich. The fuehrer refrained from saying war was on. But he said:

"I am putting on the uniform and I shall take it off only in death or victory."

Dramatically, he named Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goer-

PARIS: French Prepare to Go to Poland's Aid; Call All Troops

(By Associated Press)

PARIS—France today ordered general mobilization, decreed a state of siege and summoned parliament to meet tomorrow in quick reaction to Germany's invasion of Poland.

The mobilization means that every able-bodied Frenchman is called for military service and experts estimated it would put a total of 8,000,000 men under arms. Mobilization date is tomorrow.

The state of siege was proclaimed throughout France and Algeria by an emergency cabinet meeting.

French official reaction was immediate to reports that Hitler's troops were on the march in Poland and that his warplanes were bombing Polish cities.

Premier Daladier, after the cabinet meeting at Elysee palace, went into conference with Generalissimo Gustave Maurice Gamelin at the war ministry.

Mansfielders Not Eager for Another War But Doubt If We Can Stay Out of It.

Mansfield is just one city in the United States but today her people are probably typical of every big and little city in the county in their attitude toward the European conflict.

Today, in homes and business places they talked it over and while opinions were varied, there were few, if any, who were eager for America to rush into a war, and many were outspoken against it.

Almost without exception, however, the Mansfielders whom The News-Journal questioned at random today believe that whether this country wants to become involved or not, we are certain to. In fact, there is an almost fatalistic attitude on this point—that no matter how much the American people may 74 Babies Born at Hospital in August, New All-Time High.

August was a record month for the stork at Mansfield General hospital where 74 babies were born during the 31day period.

The birth of three girls yesterday, the last day of the month, boosted the total to eight above the previous high set in March last year when 66 were born.

Among the hospital's August births were 39 girls and 35 boys, including one set of twins, Mrs. William Bowman, nurse in charge of the maternity ward, said.

Another record was set at the hospital during the month with 16 babies born over the week-end of the 12th and 13th. It was the largest number ever born at the institution in a single week-end. Up to then, the record was 11.

News-Journal Extra Gives City Complete Picture of New War

Mansfield got its news of Europe's undeclared war hot off the wire bright and early this morning—via The News-Journal.

Shortly after 7:30, The News-Journal appeared on the street with a complete extra, carrying more than eight columns of war news—while metropolitan morning papers arriving in Mansfield only a few hours earlier, carried no indication that fighting had broken out, and only a few short paragraphs on the speech of Adolf Hitler to the German Reichstag, in which he announced that German troops had invaded Poland—he later called it a "counter attack."

Thus, while radio was able to bring only scattered reports of Europe's mounting conflagration, The News-Journal, with accurate and high speed Associated Press coverage, was able to lay down for its readers, as they set about their daily duties this morning, a complete, factual story of what was transpiring.

Shortly before 1 a. m. today, Associated Press notified The News-Journal that events of unusual import were transpiring in Europe. Editors dressed hastily, rushed to the office, and opened the Associated Press wire. Over it, the developments poured in. This morning's complete extra was the result.

U. S. CAN STAY OUT - ROOSEVELT

Administration to Make Every Effort to Keep Out of War, President Says.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt told reporters today that he believed the United States could stay out of the European conflict and the administration would make every effort to keep this country out.

In response to a press conference about whether America could keep from being involved the president authorized a direct quotation that "I not only sincerely hope so, but I believe we can and that every effort will be made by the administration so to do."

Mr. Roosevelt announced at the conference that Hugh Wilson, ambassador to Germany, had submitted his resignation this morning, that it had been accepted, and that Wilson was being assigned to special duty in the state department.

Wilson has been in this country for months.

The chief executive asserted that he would not be able to answer a question of whether anyone was under consideration to take the ambassadorship in Berlin.

Earlier the president had appealed to the European powers to Bricker Aid Indicates Jenkins' Request to Be Granted.

While State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood declined to comment, sources close to Gov. John W. Bricker indicated today that a leave of absence will be granted to Thomas C. Jenkins, former head of the Ohio State reformatory, whose administration as superintendent of the London prison farm has been under criticism.

Don Power, the governor's executive secretary, said he "presumed" a three-month leave would be given Jenkins by the welfare department, and that W. F. Amrine, state superintendent of corrections, would take charge of the prison farm, the Associated Press reported.

That the request would be acted on was indicated today by Sherwood who told the News-Journal over the telephone that he would announce his decision Tuesday.

WARSAW: German Troops and Planes Advance on Three Fronts

BULLETIN

WARSAW—(AP)—German warplanes raided the center of Warsaw this afternoon.

(By Associated Press)

WARSAW—German troops, supported by Nazi warplanes, invaded Poland today in three major drives accompanied by bombing of Polish cities.

Three air raid alarms were sounded in Warsaw during the morning and while bomb explosions were heard in the capital, no damage or casualties were reported here. The German raiders apparently failed to break through Warsaw defenses.

The Polish public was taking the alarms with remarkable calm and there was no signs of panic.

Official information indicated Nazi troops were driving in three main sectors—first, from East Prussia against Dzialdowo and Mlawa; second, from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest part of the west border of the disputed corridor, and third from Breslau against Katowice, believed to have been evacuated.

There were reports here that German planes attempted to bomb the Polish port of Gdynia, but that the bombs fell into the sea.

BERLIN: Won't Be Alive If Germany Loses, Hitler Declares

By PIERRE J. HUSS, INS Staff Correspondent.

BERLIN—In a fateful message to the people of Germany and the world, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler informed the reichstag today that war had broken out between Germany and Poland.

"It will continue," he said, "until Germany emerges victorious."

"Polish troops opened fire on our soldiers last night," he said. "Since 5:45 a. m. (11:45 p. m. Mansfield time) we have been replying with fire.

"I have ordered the air force to attack military centers.

"From now on bomb will be answered with bomb.

"Whoever fights with poison gas will be answered with poison gas.

"Whoever abandons the rules of humane warfare cannot expect anything else.

"I will not fight women and children," he told the reichstag as authentic military circles in Berlin stated that Warsaw and Cracow were primarily fortified points and therefore immediate objectives of attack.

"I ordered the air force to attack military objectives," the fuehrer continued.

"Should the enemy, however, interpret this as carte blanche to fight with other weapons, he will receive the proper answer until such a time as his senses leave him."

The reichstag meeting lasted only 45 minutes.

Moves to Stabilize U. S. Business In Event of War

GOVERNMENT AGENCIES SET FOR ACTION

Stack of Orders Ready to Soften Shock of Conflict FBI Tightens Spy Drive.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Final preparations to keep American industry stable in event of a general European war were being made by government agencies today amid increased official concern over German-Polish developments.

A stack of orders designed to cushion the shock of a conflict on the financial and commodity markets and business in general was in readiness whenever President Roosevelt might deem it wise to issue them.

It has been taken for granted here that the president would put the neutrality act in effect in the event a widespread war broke out. It was expected that simultaneously he would call for a special session of congress to consider repeal of the arms embargo which the law places against belligerents.

While White House and state department officials followed every step in the European situation, Attorney General Murphy disclosed a broadening of the justice department's campaign against spies in the United States.

The federal bureau of investigation, he said, will open new offices in this connection in Puerto Rico, Hawaii, the Panama Canal zone, and Alaska. He is considering adding an office in Manila, Philippine Islands.

The treasury, the securities commission, and the new federal lending agency were taking part in the study of war's possible effect on American business.

Jesse Jones, federal lending administrator, conferred with Mr. Roosevelt yesterday and afterward said that Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import bank, was abroad canvassing further possibilities for extending trade credits.

Other government agencies said today this country had these surplus commodities for possible sale:

1. More than 10,000,000 bales of cotton.

2. Nearly 260,000,000 bushels of corn.

3. 52,500,000 bushels of wheat.

Farmers still holding title to these commodities as security for government loans would have to say whether they could be released for foreign sale. Some officials believe war would create quite a demand for these surpluses at prices that might bring the farmers a profit.

No one in Mansfield today is more concerned about the European situation than Mrs. F. M. Nixon, 209 East First street, whose son, W. W. Nixon, is at the air base in Liverpool, England. Nixon went to England in May with the re-assembly division of the Lockheed company of Burbank, Calif., which has made a large number of bombing planes for the British government. This morning Mrs. Nixon received a letter from her son, postmaked last Tuesday, Aug. 29, (sent by clipper airmail) in which he said: "All is quiet here now but we feel war is just around the corner." He said that regardless of when the war came, the American men would remain at their task until it is completed.

Word of the outbreak of war in Europe spread over Mansfield early this morning, and a few minutes after the Red Cross office opened at 9 a. m., the first volunteer worker for war time service had registered. She is Mrs. Robert R. Black, 182 West Second street, who was one of the organizers early this year of the Mansfield Service League and is one of its most active officers and workers. She offered her services to the Red Cross for any capacity in which she may be needed. Gertrude English, executive secretary of the chapter, said that no instructions on Red Cross war work came from the national headquarters yet.

TAKES STEPS ON MART

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Federal Reserve board announced officially today steps to maintain an orderly market for government bonds.

MANSFIELDER MEETS DEATH NEAR RAVENNA

Mrs. Earl Sauder, 23, Steps in Water Over Her Head; Two Girls Are Rescued.

Two Mansfield infants were motherless today as the result of the death of their young parent who drowned late yesterday afternoon in Lake Stafford near Ravenna in Portage county while her husband was fishing at a nearby lake.

The victim was Mrs. Earl R. Sauder, 23, of Ashland road, who stepped in water over her head while wading in the lake with two Ravenna sisters.

Although Mrs. Sauder and the elder sister could swim, all three struggled in the water and called for help.

Their cries were heard by three young girls on the bank about 50 feet away who plunged into the water without removing their clothes and brought in the two sisters.

Revive Two Girls.

Unable to find Mrs. Sauder, the rescuers applied artificial respiration to the girls, Martha Gamble, 15, who was revived quickly, and her sister, Violet, 18, who recovered several minutes later.

The Mansfield woman's body was recovered from the water some time later by Bert Cady who owns the beach where the three were wading. He brought the body to the surface with a grappling hook.

Mrs. Sauder, mother of a son, 17 months old and a daughter, two and a half years old, had gone to the lake with her husband for a holiday. They had been visiting her parents in Louisville near Canton.

The young couple had lived in Mansfield for the past three years. Sauder is employed at Westinghouse.

Besides her husband and children, Mrs. Sauder is survived by a sister, Violet, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Barber, all of Louisville.

Funeral services are to be held Monday in Canton.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Amusement Talent Faces Situation About as Bad as Small Nations Abroad

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—The terrible war of nerves which has jittered the American amusement business most of this summer has come to another crisis. This struggle sums up as an attempt by George Browne, the president of the stage hands' union, to Sudetenize the American Federation of Actors, a small border state which has been having trouble with its parent body, the Associated Actors and Artists of America.

The situation is very complex, but in its simplest terms it represents a plan by the stage hands to pinch off this little Sudeten group and, presently, rush in and establish a protectorate over the entire territory of the four A's. The four A's do not want to be protected or protectorated, and they, or some of them, may throw themselves into the arms of the CIO in a desperate choice between two forms of dictatorship.

The four A's, who include all the rich stars of the screen, stage and radio, insist they are the possessors of an ancient heritage and that their history antedates that of the stage hands by many years. There were actors and singers before there were scene shifters and electricians.

Mr. Browne, however, leeringly points out that, historically, the stage hands are much older than the actors as union labor, having been chartered by the A. F. of L. in 1894. He adds that his old charter empowers his union to absorb any person whom it seems desirable.

Mr. Browne's union has an autocratic constitution which permits him to Hitlerize his followers, but it must be said that many of his followers, like many of der fuehrer's, point to the benefits which they have received from their dictator and do not bother their heads with Democratic yearnings.

There is some secret disloyalty, of course, but dissenters are careful not to raise open opposition. In one of its branches Mr. Browne's union charges an initiation fee of $1,000 and an income tax of 10 per cent, and there is one recorded instance in which the initiation fee was boosted to $3,000.

For a long time the moving picture actors belonging to the four A's have been afraid that Mr. Browne had a secret intention to anschluss them. Early in 1938 their fears were confirmed when Mr. Browne's executive board claimed the right to govern the performers under the broad provisions of the stage hands' original charter. That frightened the moving picture stars, who threatened to fight to the death, whereat Mr. Browne said, in effect, that they were a lot of sissies and that he would not take them as a gift.

But you cannot always believe what a dictator says, and lately Mr. Browne has discovered that the night club talent forming the membership of the little American Federation of Actors are race-pure stage hands who have been isolated from their comrades all this time.

He made this discovery about the time that the four A's expelled the A. F. A. and formed a new unit to embrace the members, following a little dispute about union bookkeeping.

The four A's, led by the moving picture actors, flew into a patriotic fury and appealed to the American Federation of Labor, which is their League of Nations, to repel this dictator, but the A. F. of L., like the League of Nations, is not very determined in such matters, so it proposed a compromise. Meantime, however, Mr. Browne had personally issued a charter to the night club people and claimed them for his union without consulting them at all, that being Mr. Browne's way of doing.

Now the remaining members of the four A's are in panic lest Mr. Browne sweep into their territory and anschluss them. If he did that he could charge some of the stars as much as $50,000 initiation fee, and a performer earning $200,000 a year could be taxed $20,000 on the basis that is used in taxing movie camera men. Nor is there any reason why he would have to stop at 10 per cent income tax.

The four A's have been shouting treason and denouncing Mr. Browne for unprovoked aggression, but he says that under his old charter the formation of the actors' various unions was an act of aggression against his reich. Therefore, he is just correcting a historical error.

The unfortunate actors have one hope. The department of justice has lately begun an investigation of Mr. Browne's union, including the career of Mr. Willie Bioff, personal representative of Mr. Browne, who had some interesting adventures in Chicago in the hoodlum days of Al Capone and left his name on the guest books of the Chicago police department.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—There'll be war by September—on the screen.

Come to think of it, there's pretty nearly always war on the screen. And that's odd, because if you ask your average movie producer about war pictures for profit, he'll say, "War pictures? They're out!"

Two of the biggest studios don't think so, however. Warner Bros. and 20th Century-Fox are involved in a race to be the first to "take a beating" with a war story. Practically, in fact, the same war story.

Darryl Zanuck's plant is planning a film about the life of Father Duffy, the famous priest of the famous "Fighting 69th." Jack Warner's plant is planning a film about the famous "Fighting 69th"—that's the title—which will include, naturally, the character of Father Duffy.

They're both being rather secretive about it, which is customary among studios planning to make the same story into pictures. But this I do know: William Keighley, who is to direct the Warner's "Fighting 69th," isn't afraid of the war-picture taboo.

"It's not war pictures the public doesn't like," he sticks by his guns, "it's bad war pictures. The same goes for musicals. There were some good ones, and all the studios rushed in to make others—but bad ones. Now they say that musicals are dead. One good musical would revive the craze."

Keighley is a tall, slim, immaculate young fellow who came from the stage a few years ago—as a dialogue director—and soon found himself directing some of Warner's biggest movies and stars. Oddly, for a stage fellow, he has drawn mainly the roaring action assignments: "Valley of the Giants," "The G-Men," "Special Agent." That's because, in love with the camera, he likes to use it—to put action into such one-room affairs with dialogue as "Brother Rat." "The Fighting 69th," story of that New York regiment which got across with the Rainbow Division first, and sporting James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and George Brent in top roles, will be action most of the way—and no shying from war stuff.

Keighley just made a prison picture, "Each Dawn I Die," and he throws that into the no-war-movies argument.

"People said the public was tired of prison pictures, too," he says, "and maybe they were, but that one has been doing all right. We tried to make it a 'different' kind of prison picture. We got away from studying San Quentin and Folsom for our backgrounds. I wanted a different prison so badly that I took a trip on my own to Stillwater, Minn., the site of the prison used, in some respects, in Jerome Odlum's fictional story. We used the physical layout of Stillwater prison in our story, its no-talking rules, its twine mill, although in the picture we make it clear that Stillwater is NOT the scene of our story. The story is one that could happen in any prison but actually has happened nowhere. At any rate, the public seems to be liking the picture—and it's one of the prison stories it was supposed to be tired of."

The guests gave Miss Anderson a shower of crystal gifts, and she received a complete crystal service for four from the hostesses. Mrs. Walter Kerr of Ashland and Mrs. Robert Robnolt of Canton were the out-of-town guests.

Her Marriage Announced

Pamella Nape Performs In Oriental Fantasy

A surprise feature at the performance of "An Oriental Fantasy" in Dickson gardens yesterday evening was the oriental dance presented by Pamella Nape of New York City. Miss Nape, who stopped in Mansfield while on a dancing tour of the United States, portrayed the part of a living goddess in the production and gave a native Chinese dance.

Edith Fletcher Jameson played the leading role of Moo Lee in this musicale, which was presented around a small lake and on a natural stage in the gardens. The stage was banked with many large vases of garden flowers for the performance, and bright red geraniums, tied to sticks, were literally blooming around the lake.

Stage settings for the "Fantasy" were made by William Holzman, a New York artist who has been visiting at the home of James Dickson this summer. Vera Newstead Rowley of Cleveland directed the production and played the piano accompaniment. Mrs. Louise Reynolds furnished the accompaniment for eight ballet dance students of Miss Marguerite Speas. Among the cast of 35 from Cleveland, other featured performers were Rev. Gerald Clark of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Elroy Ward, the Colonial Singers of East Cleveland, and members of the Grace Episcopal choir and junior choir members.

This was the final concert in a series of three, presented this summer for the benefit of the proposed dental clinic for Mansfield indigent children under the sponsorship of Delta Theta Tau sorority. Mrs. Jameson and James Dicksin were co-sponsors of the production.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

PROBABLY the most interesting news of the day arrived with a wedding announcement in this morning's mail. . . . Betty Smith has been married to J. Carl Eshelman in Kealakekua, Hawaii. . . . No doubt most everyone in the city remembers Betty. She was a teacher at Madison high until some three years ago when she went to Kailua, Hawaii, to live with her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Hindus, and teach school there . . . She and Mr. Eshelman were married on Aug. 19, and plan to make their home in Honolulu—where Mr. Eshelman teaches at the Iolani school

With the holiday week-end so near at hand, lots of Mansfielders are busy today making last-minute plans for late summer vacations. . . . Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Rehder are leaving tomorrow for a drive down through the southern part of the state and into Kentucky—they will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Wolf—and they plan to stop off in Cincinnati and Louisville. . . . The cool breezes of Lake Erie still seem to be beckoning a great many of the local residents—Mary Garver, Eileen Logan, Betty Hammel, Eleanor Clingan and Beverly Schwein will spend their week-end at Ruggles Beach. . . . And going on up past Lake Erie is Josephine Bushnell, who will be in Detroit for the holiday.

Even before the colleges and universities have opened for the fall term, news of our college students comes along as proof that they'll all be as important again this year as they were last. . . . For instance, when you're looking at the annual football magazine, don't be surprised at seeing Edward Chatlain's picture therein. . . . Ed, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Chatlain, merited recognition in this publication because of his work on the varsity eleven at Wittenberg college in Springfield last year. . . . He's a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity and will be a junior at the school this year.

SPEAKING of Wittenberg, Evadine Selby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Selby, will be a freshman at the college this September. . . . And so will Grover B. Swoyer, who is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Grover E. Swoyer—and perhaps this is an example of the old adage, "like father, like son," because Rev. Swoyer is an alumnus of the college, you know, and was somewhat of an athlete there, too.

And for further proof of the importance of our college students—Bette Jeanne Horner has been selected as one of the 40 advanced students to enter Smith college this fall. . . . Bette Jeanne, who parents are Mr. and Mrs. C. Dale Horner, plans to leave for Northampton, Mass., late in September. . . . This group of students, of which she is a member, was chosen on the basis of scholastic ability and former campus records.

FROM FOLKS HERE AND THERE: Mildred Yarnell has just returned to Wilmette, Ill., where she will resume her teaching activities in the public schools on Sept. 11. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Carliff Loomis of Shelby send a card from the Hotel St. George in Brooklyn, N. Y., where they're spending their summer vacation. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kisling and their daughter, Nancy Lou, are driving to Chicago today accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Swank and their son, Dwight—Eileen Akers of Chicago will return with the party following a visit with friends and relatives here for the past two weeks—and then in a turn about play. Charles Swank (who's been vacationing in Chicago) will return home with the Kisling's and Swanks next Monday.

The club members are planning to have a fish fry for their families on Sept. 12. Mrs. Jack Francis, Mrs. Ray Hout, Mrs. Henry Accuntius and Mrs. Reed will be in charge of arrangements for this affair, which will be held at the Community house in Mifflin township.

Mrs. Reed has invited the group to her home on Crider road for the next regular meeting, Sept. 28.

Republican Women To Have a Garden Tea

Mrs. Carl Spangler entertained members of the executive board of the Republican Women's council at her home on the Park avenue west road yesterday afternoon.

During the meeting the group formulated plans for a garden party to be held at the home of Mrs. Franklin Bissman on Bigelow road from 2 until 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 20. Mrs. Catherine Neff Cox of North Canton will be the guest speaker at that time.

HAVE FAMILY PICNIC.

Members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Master Plumbers entertained with a family picnic at South park yesterday evening. Mrs. Frank Marlow, Mrs. Mary Frye, Mrs. William Antrican and Mrs. Lloyd Grassick were in charge of the arrangements. Think Before Choosing Older Mate

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I just know it's not a case of infatuation though he is more than twice my age, old enough to be my father. But I love him dearly. He's very nice and polite to me, and is not married

He and his mother live together, and she is very sweet to me. I've gone places with them both, but he never asks me to go anywhere alone. I'm told by my parents I'm foolish, but I can't help myself. I can't afford to quit my job, where I see him every day, as jobs are hard to find This gentleman acts as if he thinks very much of me, but he never makes a word of love. Perhaps because I don't give him a chance I want to be so sure how he feels about me. I'm at my wit's end

A LITTLE OLDER THAN SWEET SIXTEEN.

Your parents who are on the spot do not encourage you to give 'way to your feeling So I, who am not on the spot, can only give you some impersonal suggestions I have known marriages with the same disparity of years, of which you tell me, to be very happy. However, if he should ask you to marry him, before you consent better sit down and do a little arithmetic Something like when I am 20, this gentleman will be 45, and when I'm 30, just in my prime, he will be 55 Sometimes 30 likes to go out and dance and 55 likes to wear slippers and stay at home. Think these things over as your friendship develops

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Lillian grinned impudently at my father as he told her that he also wanted her to come with us to the east end of the island.

"Try and keep me away," she told him, and he smiled back at her.

"We mustn't waste any time," he said next "I want you to telephone your husband and give him a code warning of what has happened."

"I'll do that little thing. Which first? Madge or the telephone?"

"See that Margaret is safely started on her journey to the hotel," he said. As I went out of the room I felt as if I were a child who was being taken by the hand to school for the first time. But I kept back all comment to that effect, for I knew Lillian was simply humoring my father's fussiness over his only child.

Lillian's parting comment to me was heartening.

"If Mary won't leave Noel, perhaps old Phil will consent to Noel's traveling down to the farm with her," she said. "Don't broach it before he comes down here. If you accomplish that, you will have done your Scout good deed for today, and your father and I will try to fill him up with the idea of Noel's traveling back with us. At the same time we will try to put over the idea of Mary's interrupting her training for a few days on the same mission."

"I'll have my work cut out to get him down here," I said, and she nodded an assent.

"But you'll succeed," she said confidently. Then she turned me over to the escort of the armored car chauffeur, and I was whirled uptown to the Lansfield.

Has Good News.

I found Mary and Miss Whitlock at breakfast, and Mary was so plainly jubilant that I knew she had good news even before she caroled it to me.

"Oh! Auntie Madge!" she exclaimed ecstatically. "Noel's arm is going to be all right—the surgeon said so after he had seen the x-ray—and Noel's feeling ever so much better this morning. They're going to let him sit up after he has some breakfast. How about you? Shan't we order you something? And did you hear anything from the men trailing that fiend of a Jack Leslie?"

"I've breakfasted amply, thank you," I told her, "and as for Leslie, they've found his car against a tree out on the island not five miles from the farm but no trace of him. My father's going down there this afternoon, and he wants to see your father-in-law as soon as he can get down to the Greenwich village apartment, if he will go. It is my job to persuade him. Where is he this morning?"

Doesn't Know.

"I don't know," she said. "I suppose in his suite. He came over to Noel early this morning, and he was there when the surgeon gave his verdict. Then he had a heart, for a wonder, and left me with Noel while the poor dear was having his breakfast. I haven't seen him since"

"Don't think me too remiss," Miss Whitlock said. "I made her take a cup of coffee and a roll before she went over to the hospital suite. But, of course, it wasn't much of a breakfast. However, I couldn't get her to wait for anything else, and I couldn't blame her."

"Of course not," I said, smiling at Mary. Then I walked over to the telephone and, taking it down, asked to be put through to the elder Veritzen's suite.

Delays Connection.

She did not connect me at first, and I knew that she was following the invariable instruction of Philip Veritzen never to give him a telephone connection unless he was first informed of the identity of his caller. Then I heard a click and the operator said "Go ahead." But I waited for him to speak first, because of my really ridiculous annoyance over his telephone fusiness.

At last I heard it, the full resonant voice which is one of the great impresario's most pronounced assets.

"Ah! Good morning, Mrs. Graham," he said. "I was surprised to hear you had left the hotel, and am very gratified that you have returned. How can I serve you?"

Everlastings for winter bouquets

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Flowers which retain their natural colors and form a long time after being cut and dried are classified as Everlastings. They make ideal winter bouquets and are far more natural in appearance than painted or dyed weeds or flowers.

To prepare Everlastings, strip the leaves or foliage and hang them heads down in bunches in the attic or garage, as shown in today's Garden-Graph. Let them dry out naturally, rather than try to hurry the process over a stove or radiator.

A large bag of wax or tissue paper tied about the drying bunches of flowers will keep them from getting dusty. Do not attempt to arrange Everlastings in bouquets until all the moisture has dried in their stems or until the stems have become brittle.

DEVELOPS NEW TYPE OF LILIES

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—After spending 26 years in developing 389 kinds of hybrid, giant water lilies which will bloom in the daytime, George H. Pring, superintendent of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has started a similar race of pygmy, day-flowering lilies Pring said the smaller water plants, hybridized from a lily which grows in Africa, will be suitable for backyard rock garden pools and window boxes.

"The Authority on Authorities"

HOW THEY CAN SHRINK

WHILE IT IS true enough that high cards become more valuable when there are other high cards opposite them, the converse is also true. They shrink in value when they have nothing opposite them, not only because of the direct promotional effects such cards have, but on account of the value of being able to lead toward the high cards (Dealer West. North-South vulnerable).

West had such a wealth of cards he thought that game was a cinch. He counted up nine positive tricks for No Trump, with two in spades, five in hearts and two more for his minor aces. This good news he proclaimed with an opening bid of 2-Hearts.

East, of course, denied anything particular with 2-No Trumps, whereupon West bid 3-Spades and East 3-No Trumps, where it rested. As it turned out, only seven top tricks could be taken, due to the heart break, which West would like to have spelled this way: "heartbreak."

Even if East had passed the forcing bid of 2-Hearts, the hand would have been set two tricks by normal play.

Tomorrow's Problem.

If north bids 1-Club, East doubles and West responds with 1-Diamond, what should North do?

Grand Ideas For Fresh Fruits

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

START with them; finish with them; serve them in the middle! Freeze 'em; squeeze 'em! Serve them hot or cold, or stewed or fresh; alone, with or alongside. We are speaking, ladies, of fruits.

Fruit is always a good idea, and the fruit lover goes after rarer fruits, such as nectarines, pomegranates and persimmons, while thinking up new ways of using the more popular varieties.

Good old huckleberries are with us and we celebrate their presence with a new goodie. Huckleberry Drops are made with one-half cup shortening, one cup sugar, two egg yolks, one-fourth cup milk, one tablespoon lemon juice, one-half grated lemon rind, one cup drained huckleberries, two cups flour and two teaspoons phosphate baking powder. Mix shortening and sugar; add egg yolks, lemon rind and juice, berries and milk alternately with sifted dry ingredients. Drop on greased cookie sheet and bake in moderate oven 10 to 15 minutes.

Frozen Apple Jam Snow is made with two egg whites, unbeaten; one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half cup strained red raspberry jam, one-half teaspoon grate orange or lemon rind, one cup strained applesauce, unsweetened. Beat egg whites, salt, jam (blackberry) or currant may also be used) and orange rind grating with beater until stiff and creamy (three to four minutes). Fold in apple sauce. Turn into freezing tray and freeze without stirring, with temperature control set at coldest position, two to two and one-half hours.

Cake Filling.

For a grand cake filling take one cup chopped raisins, one-half cup chopped nutmeats, one-half cup shredded cocoanut, one egg white and currant jelly. Combine raisins, nuts and cocoanut, then fold into stiffly-beaten egg whites. Spread layers of cake with a thin layer of current jelly, then with a thick layer of filling. Put sections together and top cake with boiled icing.

When raspberries are in season, make a delectable ice cream with one cup milk, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, two eggs, one-third cup light corn syrup, one cup fresh raspberries, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup heavy cream and one and one-half tablespoons lemon juice. Combine milk and cornstarch. Beat eggs, add to corn syrup. Cook combined mixtures over hot water until thick. Cool. Mash raspberries with sugar. Chill, and then strain. Combine with custard. Beat cream; fold in, add lemon juice. Partially freeze in automatic refrigerator tray. Beat smooth. Finish freezing. Serves six.

"I Knew When Mansfield People Endorsed Vendol It Was Absolutely Good."

"Now I Have No Gas in Stomach, Acid Risings, or Bloating; Nerves Are Calm and Feel Grand Since It Relieved My Constipation," Says Henry St. Resident.

MRS. JOSEPH SHEETS

"When I read in the papers what men and women living right here in our home town said Vendol would do, and my friend Mr. Fred Brunn of 44 Giessner Ave., praised it so highly, I knew this medicine must be absolutely right, so I got some," said Mrs. Joseph Sheets, a well known resident of 38 Henry St., Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store a few days ago.

"Since taking Vendol, I want to pass the good word along so everyone suffering the same way can see for themselves what this grand medicine will do. I suffered for some time from constipation which caused a lot of symptoms to bother me.

"Everything I ate seemed to disagree with my stomach and fermented, causing gas to bloat me up and press around my heart till I couldn't breathe easily. I'd rift up little bits of undigested food and a hot sour liquid would irritate my throat.

"This condition made me so nervous I could hardly sleep and I'd be out of bed several times every night. I often had pains across my back and my feet felt as though I had weights tied to them. I had nagging headaches at times and my tongue was coated very often. I was always taking purgatives and other medicines, but Vendol has already done more good than anything I had tried.

"Vendol relieved my constipation: then what I ate stopped upsetting my stomach, and it just looks as though every trouble is disappearing and I'll soon feel as well as ever. I think Vendol is the finest medicine I ever took."

Start on Vendol today, and see how quickly you too begin to feel better. See the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., and he will tell you all about this remarkable medicine and what it can do for you. Leading druggists everywhere sell and recommend it.—Adv.

YARMAN BENEFIT GAMES TO GIVE FANS THEIR MONEY'S WORTH SUNDAY.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THAT will be a fine tribute that will be paid "Darby" Yarman at the Fairground Sunday.

A regular fellow if there ever was one, Yarman has played the game of sports for all there has been in him. Never a professional, "Darby" played ball around these parts for many years, and put more into his athletic activities than he ever received in return.

But "Darby" obtained something in his connection with sports that money cannot buy—an army of friends. It is this legion of friends which are coming to his assistance in his distress. No man could ask for more.

"Darby" is incapacitated only temporarily, but his friends know that a little financial aid would help to brighten a drab picture. The crack in the ankle that put him out of commission was hardly set before his many friends launched plans for the benefit program arranged for the Fairground Sunday.

The fact that the games are being played for "Darby" assures a mammouth crowd, but the program would sell on its own merits.

Look at the lineup the three-star attraction will offer: American Legion junior baseball club vs. Yuncker Sports of 10 years ago, DeLuxe Cabs, runners-up in state softball tournament, vs. J. & H. Grills of Massillon and Mansfield Merchants girls vs. North Ridgeville. This program is being sold for a 25 cent admission charge.

Now, honestly, can you think of a better place to spend Sunday afternoon than at the Fairground?

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY: 100 golfers invaded Westbrook country club for second Ohio Seniors golf tournament. . . . Paul E. Curry's plea for grid candidates at Shelby high school was answered by 85. . . . George Earnshaw limited the Yankees to four hits to give the A's a 10-2 win.

TIFFIN'S NOT READY TO FOLD UP

THE team that virtually everyone thought would crack under the strain of the tight Ohio State league race are still very much in the pennant scramble, thank you.

Reference is made to the Tiffin Mudhens, whose obituary was written when Mansfield Jimmy Lawrence left the flock to join a Chicago pro football club, and Catcher Ray Foldenauer and Shortstop Andy Sabota were pulled up to Toledo.

But instead of cracking with an inexperienced head at the helm, the Mudhens have been performing in a more spectacular manner than they did under Lawrence.

Young Al Curry, who has been placed in charge of the club, has lifted the Mudhens from a poor third to the top. The Mudhens have not missed Sobato to any great extent, and Don Swartz has given Tiffin the best catching it has received all season.

The current success of the Hens may be an indication that the troublesome Lawrence was not the best manager in the Ohio State league after all.

SIGN OF LIFE

"Lou Nova says Tony Galento bleeds easily above the eyes. . . . Well, that would be one sign of life up there," Nixson C. Denton wisecracks in the Cincinnati Times-Star.

The Chicago Cardinals' backfield this fall will look a lot like one of Jock Sutherland's fondest dreams. Three leading candidates are former Pittsburgh stars. They are Marshall Goldberg, Harold Stebbins and Frank Patrick.

Braves Blank Tiffin, 11-0; Play Twin Bill Tonight

Bob Schremser Gives Flock Six Hits as Tribe Hits Home Stretch In Hectic Race.

By CHARLES MARTIN

WITH the cheers from the throats of 1,700 spectators still echoing in their ears, the Mansfield Braves hoisted their wigwam in Tiffin as they prepared to add two more scalps to their victory belt when they meet the pace-making Mud Hens in a double-header tonight.

Although they are still resting in the cellar berth in the hectic Ohio State league race, Chief Dewey Stover's proteges hope they can duplicate their display of batting power which featured a one-sided 11 to 0 triumph over Tiffin before the "Merchants' night" crowd under the floodlights at the Fairground last night.

Get Nod Tonight.

Manager Stover will probably nominate Lefty Mosser and Del Leslie to toe the rubber as his hard-hitting outfit attempts to overtake the fifth-place Lima Pandas.

Combing the slants of two Tiffin moundsmen for 15 hits, the Braves put on another exhibition of the hitting power which has marked them as one of the most feared clubs in the circuit.

Led the Harry Siegbert, lanky first baseman, who smacked out a pair of triples, a double and a single in five times at the plate, the Mansfielders began teeing off in the second frame.

George Schild, a southpaw making his first start against Mansfield, got past the opening frame, but he wasn't in there when the Braves finished batting in the second.

Schremser

Hank Edwards greeted him with a single to open the inning, and before Bill Fulghum could throttle the scoring spree, five Mansfield runs had dented the plate.

That margin would have been sufficient for Bob Schremser served up an assortment of pitches that completely baffled the Mud Hens. The tall righthander limited the league leaders to six hits and not more than one came in any single inning. He was in rare form as he whiffed 11 and issued only two walks.

Schemser chalked up his fifth win in seven starts. In only the first and ninth inning did he allow a Tiffinite to reach third base and both died there.

Edwards, who started the thing rolling in the initial chapter, opened the second with a triple against the left field wall. After Charlie Wrenn popped out, Siegbert got his double and the fireworks started again. Four more tallies were sent across the plate before Harold Beals flied out to centerfield.

Mansfield added single markers in the fourth and fifth and started another threat in the eighth. Three singles in the latter inning packed the bases, but Fulghum fanned Don Hauri, a recruit third baseman from Toledo, to end the inning.

Hauri, a sandlot star, making his debut with the Braves, only handled two chances afield, but looked impressive at the plate. In five trips he collected a single and three walks.

Hits Long Triple.

It looked like Schremser might be robbed out of a shut out when, with one out, Eddie Kudrycki laced out a triple. The righthander, however, bore down and ended the threat with little trouble.

H. B. "Buzz" Wetzel, head of the Cleveland farm system, was a spectator at last night's game.

Stover got a nice hand from the crowd in the first inning when he made a brilliant running catch of Cindric's bid for a double.

Bissman Club Finds Place In Tight Race

Defending Champ Jumps From 2nd Division Into Fourth Place.

All season the defending championship Bissman company club wielders have been fighting to climb out of the second division in The News-Journal Class B Golf league race—and today they had accomplished the feat.

Whether the Bissman club can repeat remains to be seen, but it is only six points out of the first place berth held by the Ohio Public Service foursome.

The Servicemen vaulted back into a lofty perch in matches at Possum Run yesterday by edging the Elks Lodge team, 2 to 1. The pace setter's lead is anything but secure for only four points stand between the lead and third place.

Central Fruit, which held the lead going into yesterday's contest, dropped into the runner-up slot by dropping a 2 to 1 decision to Harvey's Sample Shoes. The two points enabled the Shoemen to remain a point behind the Central Fruit outfit.

Bissman's representatives gained a spot in the top division by walloping the Richman Clothes, 4 to 1. The News-Journal entry held sixth place despite a 2 to 1 setback at the hands of the Mansfield Metal Vaults.

Fay Strome of the Elks Lodge team, cracked out a one-over-par 37 to annex individual medal honors for the day.

Carey, Pelton Tie For Lead

W. J. Spreng and A. I. Davey Major Mansfield Threats In Annual Tournament at Westbrook.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

THERE may be a new champion crowned in this year's edition of the Ohio Seniors golf tournament which will be concluded at Westbrook Country club this afternoon, but nothing like this can occur until stoutish D. E. Carey of down Zanesville-way runs into trouble in the final half of the 36-hole competition.

If Carey refuses to object to the seating of a new king, Frank Pelton of Cleveland, a former champion, may be the man to succeed the Zanesvillian.

Should Carey and Pelton both suddenly lose their golfing skill, W. J. Spreng of Mansfield, another ex-Seniors king, or F. B. Fults of Cleveland may be prominent contenders.

Lead Title Race.

Carey and Pelton were tied with 80's for first place at the conclusion of the first day's play, and Spreng and Fults were deadlocked with 81's. These four veteran swingers are the most dangerous in the record field of 105.

Another Zanesville man, E. G. Merkert, A. D. Wolfe of Columbus and A. I. Davey of Mansfield are right back of the leaders with 83 cards, and they are in splendid positions to jump into the lead if the present pacesetters crack. This is unlikely, however.

Pelton was particularly spectacular in yesterday's play. The Clevelander started but with a common 42, but he got his game under control at the turn and piled up a 38.

If Pelton starts today where he left off yesterday, a Cleveland address can be attached to the trophy.

Carey played more consistently than Pelton, shooting a pair of 40's, but the Zanesville shotmaker encountered some trouble on the greens yesterday. He three-putted four holes. Unless his putter shows a reversal of form, Carey may find it difficult to retain the title.

Mansfield's Spreng is very much in the running, and a flashy round today would put him right on top of the heap. Spreng, who is listed in the group with golfers between the ages of 55 and 60, as are Pelton and Carey, went out in 41 and came home in 40 yesterday.

One of the remarkable scores of the first day was provided by E. D. Baxter of Mansfield, who admits to being over 75. Baxter shot a 48 and 46 for a 94 and first place in his division.

83 Years Old, Plays.

C. E. Ransom of Coshocton, 83, the oldest player in the tournament confined to men above 50, played 18 holes right along with the "youngsters," and compiled a 58-55—113.

Scores of other Mansfielders: L. W. Olson, 92; John H. Finefrock, 97; C. S. Dickey, 103; T. R. Barnes, 103; H. S. Black, 111; W. M. Weldon, 112, and J. M. Cook, 65 (nine holes).

Included in the field is Ex-Governor George White of Marietta, who failed to disturb the leaders yesterday with 60-55—115.

Mrs. Campbell Seeks Second Tennis Title

Defeats Ann Arron, 6-1, 6-3, to Gain Women's Crown in News-Journal Play.

Mrs. Marty Campbell sought her second crown in The News-Journal senior tennis tournament at the Woodlawn court today.

Playing consistent tennis in every department, Mrs. Campbell defeated Anne Arron, 6-1, 6-3, in the women's finals on the Woodlawn ground yesterday.

Seek Doubles Crown.

Today Mrs. Campbell and her husband, W. O., go after the mixed doubles championship in a match against the defending champions, Naomi Grandon and Bob Enos. The match is scheduled at 4:30 p. m.

Both duos swept through their preliminary rounds without a great amount of difficulty, and the outcome of their title meeting is a toss-up.

Mrs. Campbell proved that she is the No. 1 ranking feminine tenniser in the city yesterday when she annexed the crown. She drove little harder than her opponent, but handled her shots better on the defense.

This is Mrs. Campbell's second appearance in The News-Journal tournament. She reached the finals last year, but lost to Janie Kuhn, who is out of the city.

50 Grid Candidates Report To Snyder at Mansfield High

FOOTBALL bounced back into the picture at Mansfield high school today as a squad of candidates numbering more than 50 reported to the Tygers' new mentor, Paul Snyder, late of Mt. Vernon.

The squad is expected to reach the 100 mark on Tuesday when opening classes are scheduled.

Snyder, who succeeds J. Russell Murphy, now on the Cornell university coaching staff, sent the grid aspirants through a brisk fundamental drill this morning. Vern Hoffman, head basketball coach and assistant in football, was also on hand for the opening drill.

Harry Mehock, athletic director of Mansfield schools, who will also assist in football, is expected to return to the city over the week-end.

Snyder was well pleased with the initial workout this morning and planned to send the gridmen through plays this afternoon.

Another drill is billed Monday morning, Labor Day, with the regular afternoon schedule of practices going into effect when school opens Tuesday.

Old Yuncker Team Dons Suits Again Sunday for Yarman

One of the strongest semi-pro baseball teams ever to represent Mansfield was the old Yuncker Sports of some 10 years ago.

This team has been re-assembled to participate in a game against the American Legion Juniors on the "Darby" Yarman benefit program to be staged at the Fairground Sunday.

Yarman was a member of the old Sports. Unable to play Sunday, his place in the lineup will be taken by a son, Gene, who performs with Liberty park.

Another member of the team was the late "Nig" McMullen, and his position in the lineup will also be filled by a son, Chuck.

Mayer to Play With Guldahl

Mansfield Youth Selected for Match at Possum Run.

Joe Mayer, youthful Mansfield shotmaker, has been selected as one of the golfers to play with Ralph Guldahl, former National Open champion, in an exhibition match at Possum Run Thursday, Sept. 7, it was announced by Manager "Irish" McGee.

Mayer, one of the outstanding club wielders in this vicinity, has been busting par all season at Possum and should make it interesting for Guldahl. Mayer is enjoying one of his best years. He finished third in the Ohio Public Links tournament at Dayton recently, and is a former Coolridge Country club champion.

Guldahl, who will play an 18-hole match, is participating in a tournament at Hershey, Pa., this week. McGee will select two other club members to play in the foursome.

CABS PULL TRIPLE PLAY, BEAT CONGREGATIONALS

Five runs provided the Service Cabs with an early lead as they walloped the First Congregational softball club, 12 to 8, at Maple Lake park yesterday. The contest, a 7-inning affair, was highlighted by a triple play pulled by the Service Cabs in the first inning. It went from Whitlock to Parr to Lentz to Miner to Beck. Lentz hit a home run, triple and single for the winners. Livensparker also added a circuit clout to the cause. Abrendt hit a home run for the losers.

Reds Buy Simmons to Bolster Garden

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—Al Simmons, newly-acquired 36-year-old veteran, will start in left field for the Cincinnati Reds Saturday, Manager Bill McKechnie said today as the league-leaders headed home for a brief engagement with the Chicago Cubs.

McKechnie said he was confident that Simmons, purchased for a reported $10,000 to $15,000 from the Boston Bees, would be a "big help" to the Reds for the stretch pennant drive. The National League pace-setters played less than .500 ball for August, winning 13 and losing 15 games. Simmons who has been batting .282 for Boston replaced Rookie Dick West on the Cincinnati roster.

MARKET STEMS RETREAT AFTER LOWER OPENING

War Commodities Soar as Long-Dreaded Hostilities Open in Europe.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The long-dreaded outbreak of hostilities in Europe today hit the stock market for losses running to 5 points or so before support stemmed the retreat.

After a moderate decline on relatively light volume at the opening, selling picked up with industrials suffering the most. The pace slowed later and extreme declines were reduced.

War commodities, especially sugar, wheat, hides, rubber and cocoa soared. Several sugar company shares, including South Porto Rico, Cuban-American and Fajardo, advanced 1 to around 4.

Prominent on the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Westinghouse, General Electric, DuPont, Eastman Kodak, Consolidated Edison, North American and Loft.

Bonds tumbled with stocks, but heavy liquidation was absent in this department.

London was closed for the evacuation of women, children and invalids from populous centers. Amsterdam and Paris bourses opened but trade was restricted. American issues, though, were resistant.

The securities and exchange commission, as well as brokers, commented on the generally calm reaction of the New York exchange and it was said there was no idea of closing the markets here unless unforeseen eventualities occurred.

U. S. CAN STAY OUT-ROOSEVELT

Administration to Make Every Effort to Keep Out of War, President Says.

soften the horrors of modern warfare from the skies.

To Great Britain, France, Germany, and Poland, he addressed before daybreak identical messages asking each for a public pledge that it would not bombard civilian populations and unfortified cities during "the tragic conflagration with which the world is now confronted."

Otherwise, Mr. Roosevelt said, "hundreds of thousands of innocent human beings who have no responsibility for, and who are not even remotely participating in the hostilities which have now broken out will lose their lives."

The dispatch of this message at 4:30 a. m. (EST) was the first high spot of a day that many expected would be replete with climaxes in Washington as well as Europe.

President Roosevelt reserved his decision on whether to invoke the Neutrality act or call congress in session, awaiting the next turn of fate in Europe.

The president slept but little last night. As word came that war was on, he was listening to radio reports and receiving state department dispatches and phone calls from across the Atlantic.

Army Posts Notified.

One of his earliest steps was to order all naval vessels and army posts notified of the hostilities.

In his message about aerial bombing, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The ruthless bombing from the air of civilians in unfortified centers of population during the course of hostilities which have raged in various quarters of the earth during the past few years which have resulted in the maiming and in the death of thousands of defenseless women and children," the president said, "has sickened the hearts of every civilized man and woman, and has profoundly shocked the conscience of humanity."

WATCHES NAZI PLANES BOMB POLES' CAPITAL

Writer Phones Details While 14 Nazi Bombers Blast at City With Explosives.

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
(AP Staff Correspondent)

WARSAW—German warplanes swooped over Warsaw this afternoon in an air attack in advance of three Germany armies invading this country.

I am telephoning this dispatch to Budapest with the 'phone in one hand and a gas mask in the other.

From where I am I can hear the wail of power-diving fighting ships and can see 14 German bombers slowly, steadily following the course of the Vistula river, Poland's outlet to the sea.

Apparently they are attempting to destroy all bridges.

The raid began about 4:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m. Mansfield time) and is still continuing more than an hour later.

The German air raiders now (5:30 p. m., 11:35 a. m. Mansfield time)—are coming back after making a wide circle.

They apparently are heading toward government buildings in the center of downtown Warsaw.

I can see pufs of anti-aircraft fire.

Although the raid is still on, there is no panic.

Across the street from me, hundreds of inhabitants are watching fascinated on roof tops.

Tremendous explosions are shaking the city and rattling windows.

Anti-aircraft shells are bursting around the bombers which are coming over at an altitude of about 6,000 feet.

Warsaw had little warning.

Elmer W. Peterson, Associated Press chief of bureau here, and I heard the anti-aircraft guns before we heard the scream of air-raid alarm sirens.

Blow To Capital.

If the bombers have tied up traffic over the steel railroad bridge spanning the Vistula it is a serious blow for Poland's traffic from here to the coast and to the west.

The Germans apparently tried for definitely military objectives. There was no sign of incendiary bombs.

This was the first time German bombs had dropped in the Polish capital although invading planes had attempted four times earlier to get over the city.

The German squadrons swooped over the city apparently attempting to smash the bridges across the Vistula river, Poland's outlet to the sea.

Anti-aircraft guns fired at the raiders.

Some German bombers appeared to have fallen into the Vistula.

From time to time I can hear the explosions of falling bombs.

They are dropping close by us now. Two blocks from the United States embassy.

Bombardment of Polish cities accompanied major drives by three German land armies.

Until this raid, however, the closest the German air raiders had come to Warsaw was eight miles away. They apparently were attempting to smash Polish railway communications there.

ROAD JOBS END

Contractor Finishes $69,000 Resurfacing Program.

Work on the county's $69,000 PWA road resurfacing program was completed Thursday when workmen spread the last materials on the Lucas-Perrysville road in Monroe township.

The project was the first road job in the county, to receive PWA funds. In progress since June, it provided for the resurfacing of 94 miles of secondary roads with bituminous materials. Sections of 44 roads in 15 of the county's 19 townships were treated.

The work was done by the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company which was awarded the contract by county commissioners. About 15 men were employed on the job during the summer.

The federal government contributed approximately $31,000 to the cost of the work while the rest came from the county road fund.

BRUNNER SEEN AS DEMS' CHOICE IF LIMBACH QUITS AS CHAIRMAN

Henry G. Brunner, former Mansfield mayor and now state manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation was reported today to be the most likely choice of the Democratic party for chairman of the state executive committee if Arthur L. Limbach of New Philadelphia, should resign.

United Press dispatches from Columbus today said the announcement by Charles Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman and candidate for governor in 1938 that he would call an early meeting of the state Democratic executive committee aroused speculation over Limbach's possible retirement.

Sawyer in his announcement said the meeting would be for "an exchange of views with reference to party affairs in Ohio."

The United Press reported that it was known that certain prominent Democrats have been dissatisfied with Limbach's leadership and that a meeting last Sunday on the drive for a referendum on the new civil service law, Limbach's absence provoked criticism from Francis W. Durbin of Lima, a prominent Ohio leader.

Limbach was at a National Guard encampment and Durbin said he should resign if he could not devote more time to party matters.

Dispatches said that if Limbach should resign, the post would be offered to Brunner, who is a former state chairman and who has been suggested by a number of Democratic leaders as the person best able to compose factional differences within the party.

Brunner was out of the city today and could not be reached for comment.

PASS MILLION

County's Tax Collection for Year Total $1,096,733.

Richland county real estate tax receipts for the year passed the million-dollar mark today, the final day of the collection period.

Yesterday's collections, which amounted to $25,213, brought the total to $1,096,733. Of that amount, $456,733 was collected in the period which ends today and $640,000 during the first half of the year.

There was still more than $100,000 due today on the second half tax charge, but County Treasurer John E. Kolb expected late payments to reduce that figure by several thousand dollars.

New Coach Cites Need of Balanced Athletic Program

"The basis for successful athletic teams is a diversified physical education program involving every student," Paul Snyder, head football coach at Mansfield high school, told members of the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon meeting at Westbrook Country club yesterday.

Snyder pointed out that if Mansfield high school athletic teams are to continue rivalries with present schools on their schedule, the program to develop thletes for varsity competition must start in junior high schools.

"A well-balanced physical education program in the grade schools will also aid in building up the caliber of Mansfield's opponents," Snyder said.

Although this is Snyder's first year as the Tyger mentor, the former Mt. Vernon coach promised a scrappy football team next fall.

Snyder was introduced by Rev. David Roller of the First Presbyterian church.

Milo Hieber, president of the club, and Edward Dann gave a report of the national convention they recently attended as delegates in Boston.

LONDON, PARIS ACT TO CARRY OUT PROMISES

Answer Poland's Call for Help by Summoning Parliaments; More Troops Called.

Earlier in his speech, Chamberlain asserted:

"The time has come when action rather than speech is required.

"Eighteen months ago I prayed that the responsibility might not fall on me to accept the awful arbitrament of war. I fear that I am not able to accept that responsibility."

As Chamberlain spoke in the house of commons, Lord Halifax, foreign secretary, spoke in the house of lords, where many of the peers already were wearing their service uniforms.

Chamberlain, dealing with Germany's contention that Poland had rejected her 16 proposals for peace, asserted: "These proposals have never been communicated by Germany to Poland at all."

The momentous Polish step in invoking the British-Polish mutual assistance treaty was made on the grounds of German aggression against Poland.

The Polish ambassador, Count Edward Raczynski, delivered his country's appeal in a call on Lord Halifax, British foreign secretary.

His visit followed upon official reiteration that Britain and France were determined to fulfill their obligations to Poland.

The British parliament had been summoned for 5 p. m. (noon Mansfield time), the cabinet had been in session and King George had summoned the privy council as fateful events swiftly developed after German troops and warplanes invaded Poland.

The British parliament had been summoned for 5 p. m. (noon Mansfield time), the cabinet had been in session and King George had summoned the privy council as fateful events swiftly developed after German troops and warplanes invaded Poland.

The treaty Poland invoked was signed just one week ago today.

It provides: "Should one of the contracting parties become engaged in hostilities with a European power in consequence of aggression by the latter against the contracting party, the other contracting party will at once give the contracting party engaged in hostilities all the support and assistance in its power."

Lloyds of London, the insurance, announced without explaining its action that it would close tomorrow.

Subways Closed.

Numerous main subway stations were ordered closed immediately "so that certain work may be done." This apparently indicated that anti-air raid measures were being taken.

Queen Elizabeth early in the afternoon visited headquarters of the Women's Volunteer service in Westminster.

An authoritative announcement, issued as the cabinet met to decide a course of action, told of determination to fulfill the obligations to the utmost if Adolf Hitler's proclamation should mean "as it would seem to mean, that Germany has declared war on Poland."

Parliament was summoned to meet to give full force to the government's decision, which the authorized statement foreshadowed.

The British pledge to Poland has been repeatedly stated as requiring immediate and full support in the event that Poland resisted a threat to her independence.

The government ordered all air raid warning systems in the country to be put into immediate operation.

Flee From London.

Hundreds of thousands hurried from London and other large cities under a pre-arranged evacuation plan which became urgent on news that Germany already had struck against Poland.

The feeling of the public seemed general that war involving Britain was now inescapable.

The authorized British statement declared that Poland was fully justified in refusing to submit to more exacting treatment than "is customry even in the case of peace terms imposed on a defeated power."

Creation of a war cabinet including members of the opposition and, perhaps, such conservatives as Winston Church-ill and Anthony Eden was forecast in political quarters as an early step in the event of an actual declaration of war.

Preparedness measures already had been brought to a high peak after what was interpreted in official quarters as a virtual German ultimatum Tuesday that a Polish envoy be in Berlin by Wednesday with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

This explained yesterday's swift measures, among them the complete mobilization of the British navy, the calling of additional army and air force reserves and the decision to remove children, women, invalids and the aged from dangerous metropolitan areas today.

WHEAT SOARS AS WAR BREAKS

Prices Skyrocket to Limit Allowed for One Day as Hostilities Begin.

Responding as it did in World war times, the American wheat market today skyrocketed more than seven cents a bushel with the outbreak of the German-Polish hostilities.

Inspired buying immediately sent the price up to a high of 75 cents a bushel in Chicago and 72 cents in Mansfield, but the board of trade limitation on price increases held market activities at a standstill here.

The price jumped five cents as soon as news of the war reached this country and further gains of the maximum of five cents a day were forecast by Mansfield grain dealers if the war continues.

Today's figure was the highest here since early in June, but it was still far below the $2 per bushel or more that wheat sold for in World war times.

To prevent too rapid market fluctuations, the Chicago board of trade limits the price gains to five cents a day except in crop delivery months when the market can swing eight cents either way.

JACKSON NATIVE DIES IN SHELBY

SHELBY — Mrs. Malinda McKinney, 85, of Jackson township, died in the Shelby Memorial hospital yesterday after a brief illness. Mrs. McKinney was born in Jackson township, Jan. 10, 1854.

Surviving are four sons, James of Crestline, Edward of Cleveland and Frank and Perry of Jackson township; two daughters, Mrs. F. A. Childs of New London and Mrs. W. C. Cotter of Mansfield; two brothers, Richard Kirkpatrick of New London and S. J. Kirkpatrick of Mansfield; a sister, Mrs. Jacob Sheely of Lima, and 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Services will be held at the Dick and Dye funeral home at 1:30 p. m. Monday with Rev. John Searle of the United Brethren church officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

OHIO ABOLISHES DISTRICT SALES TAX OFFICE HERE

Cuts Number in State From 17 to 12 in Economy Move; 10 Employes Here Shifted.

The Mansfield district sales tax office of the Ohio Tax commission was abolished today in a statewide redistricting move as part of Gov. John W. Bricker's economy program which reduced from 17 to 12 the number of offices in the state.

As the result of the redistricting which became effective today, Richland and Ashland counties became part of the Norwalk district. Wayne and Holmes counties were shifted to the Akron district, and Knox, Morrow and Marion counties, all of which were a part of the old Mansfield district, were transferred to the Columbus area.

A. B. Mabee, district manager of the office which has been located in the Walpark building for the past four and a half years, has been transferred to the legal department of the sales tax division in Columbus.

Examiner Here on Fridays.

He said that arrangements had been made whereby local tax examiners for Richland county would have office space in the city building and that an examiner will be here Friday of each week.

Of the 10 persons employed in the Mansfield office, four have been transferred to Norwalk, five to Columbus and one to Akron.

Those who have been assigned to the Norwalk office are H. H. Hering, Mrs. Edith B. Metcalf, Harley D. Miracle and James P. Hunter. Going to Columbus besides Mabee are Kenneth M. Harper, J. L. Mateer, Floyd H. Cornely and C. D. Davidson. W. C. Leonard has been sent to Akron.

STILL AHEAD

Bank Clearings Show Gain for 8th Consecutive Month.

Mansfield's business continued its upward trend in August with the city's bank clearings, a reliable barometer, 11 per cent or $867,900 ahead of figures for August last year.

The August clearings were $6,809,959, marking the eighth consecutive month that clearings have shown a gain over the corresponding month of 1938.

August figures brought the total for the first two-thirds of the year to $55,677,190, an increase of $7,073,815 over the same period last year, Ned Brooks, Clearing House secretary, reported.

Despite the gain in the August figures over the same month in 1938, last month's clearings were about $280,000 under the July total which was one of the highest of the past two years.

POLAND FIGHTING NAZI MARCH ACROSS BORDERS

Britain, France Prepare to Go to Aid of Poles as Hitler Orders Troops, Warplanes to Begin Warfare.

ing his first choice as his successor.

The German advance was described in Berlin as a counter-attack in retaliation for Polish border violations.

Britain, France Ready.

But a declaration in London, which passed through British censorship, said if "as it would seem x x x Germany has declared war on Poland," Britain and France will be in it.

President Roosevelt appealed to Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland for pledges they would not bombard civilian populations.

White House sources said there would be no immediate action for invoking the neutrality act or calling congress into special session.

The Canadian parliament was called for an emergency meeting Sept. 7.

Premier Mussolini called the Italian cabinet to meet at 3 p. m. (9 a. m., EST).

Bomb explosions were heard in Warsaw, but no deaths or casualties were reported immediately.

Official Polish sources, however were without information at that time of the extent of damage or casualties in air raids elsewhere in the country.

Polish cities bombed, the foreign office said, were Krakow, Katowice, Czestochowa, Tczew and Grudziaz.

It confirmed that fighting had started in Danzig.

The reported point of heavy German troop massing in East Prussia is opposite a Polish frontier only 80 miles from Warsaw.

German troops also crossed the Polish border between the Vistula river and Deutsch-Eylau. German planes attacked Tczew and the bridge over the Vistula, it was learned in Budapest.

German tanks were directed against Poland's Mukolowo region, Zakopani, a section of Kraszta and Praepice.

An infantry battalion moved against Lubinec, Tarniowski and Gori.

In Paris, the German strategy was seen as an attempt by two armies to strike swift, hard blows toward the heart of Poland to try to pinch off Pomorze (the Polish corridor) before the British and French war machines could be put into action.

In London, the Polish ambassador notified Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax that Poland had invoked the British-Polish mutual assistance treaty on grounds of German aggression.

British ordered air raid alarm systems into immediate operation throughout the country.

Evacuation of children, women, invalids and the aged from London and other dangerous metropolitan centers became urgent.

French mobilization means that every able-bodied Frenchman is called for military service.

That would put a total of 8,000,000 men under arms, experts estimated.

The mobilization date is tomorrow.

A state of siege was ordered in France and the French parliament summoned for tomorrow.

Hitler spoke to his reichstag as if war already were on. He intimated that the Rome-Berlin axis was smashed; that Germany does not count on Italian help.

Said Hitler:

"I should like to thank Italy which has supported us this whole time.

"You will understand, however, that for carrying this fight through I do not want to appeal for foreign help.

"We shall solve our task ourselves."

Hitler vowed eternal friendship with Soviet Russia.

He renounced claims on the western powers.

He said:

"We want nothing from the western powers and we have formally declared we have no claims against them.

"Our west wall (of fortifications) is also our west border."

The reichstag unanimously shouted its approval of a law annexing Danzig.

Sir Percy Loraine, British ambassador to Italy, sought an interview in Rome with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

He wanted urgent discussions on Italy's intentions.

United States Ambassador Phillips likewise sought to confer with Ciano to deliver an appeal from President Roosevelt against bombing of civilian centers.

Confers With Duce.

Ciano was busy during the morning. He was believed to have been in conference with Premier Mussolini while Italy still seemed undertermined.

King Carol called a crown council to proclaim Rumanian neutrality.

The Yugoslav cabinet held ready a neutrality proclamation for early issuance.

Moscow reported Japanese forces virtually annihilated in fighting on a large scale on the frontier between Manchoukuo and outer Mongolia. In Tokyo, Japanese sources were silent.

Children Flee to Escape Dreaded Air Raids

Almost identical scenes were being enacted in London and Paris today—evacuation of children to escape much-feared air raids. Both Britain and France were preparing today to go to the aid of Poland, which invoked the treaty the two larger powers had signed with her after German troops and planes crossed her border early today in an undeclared war, brought on by the insistent Nazi demands for the Free City of Danzig and the Polish Corridor.

WON'T BE ALIVE IF NAZIS LOSE, HITLER ASSERTS

Conflict Will Continue Until Germany 'Emerges Victor,' Chancellor Declares.

Unanimous approval was voted to annexation of Danzig as proclaimed earlier in the day by Albert Forster, Danzig chief of state.

Danzig First Problem.

"I am determined first to solve the Danzig problem, second that of the Polish Corridor and third to ensure that the conditions be established for peaceful living.

"I am determined to fight until the present Polish government is ready to establish that state of affairs, or until some other Polish government is so ready.

"I thank Italy for her support. But I shall not appeal for foreign help to carry on this struggle. I will solve this task alone.

"I will take the action that is necessary to remove danger and uncertainty from the German borders.

"We shall solve this problem ourselves and the neutral states have guaranteed their neutrality. If anyone should break this neutrality, we shall treat this accordingly, but we expect it to be observed."

"I shall not take off this army uniform until Germany is victorious.

"Unless I am victor, I shall not live to see the end.

"Should anything happen to me, then my successor shall be Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

"Should anything happen to him, the next successor will be our party leader Rudolph Hess.

"I expect that each will be given the same confidence that you have given me.

"My only object is to fight for my people and the restoration of Germany. I have never learned the word capitulation. November 18, 1918, will never repeat itself in German history.

"I am ready to give my life for my country. I expect everyone to do the same."

Refers To Moscow.

Referring to the Russo-German pact, ratified yesterday in Berlin and Moscow, he said:

"I want to underline every word that has been said by Molotov (Premier V. M. Molotov of the U. S. S. R.)

"Germany and Russia fought against each other in the World war. Both suffered. That will not happen a second time.

"The western frontier of Germany is its eternal border. I have offered England friendship repeatedly. But close co-operation demands that such proposals cannot be one-sided."

Now that the blow has fallen, Hitler said, "I will fight until the security of the reich and the rights of Germany are guaranteed.

"In the past six years," he continued, "I have spent 90,000,000 marks for restoration of the army, which is far better and superior than that of 1914.

"My confidence in our defense forces is unshakable."

For four months, Hitler said, he had "calmly witnessed" developments on the frontier.

"But my warnings have repeatedly increased," he said. "I informed the Polish embassy three weeks ago that if Poland continued sending ultimative notes to Danzig and exerting suppressive measures or attempting to wreck Danzig economically, Germany could no longer look on impassively."

'I Belong To Germany.'

"In demanding sacrifices from the German people," Hitler said, "there is to be no deprivation that I shall not personally assume.

"My whole life belongs to the German people. I want to do nothing better than be the first soldier in the reich.

"Therefore I don this field gray coat, which is dearest to me. I will take it off only after victory, or I will not live to see the end."

The fuehrer said he was convinced that Poland was never seriously prepared to negotiate, but that he nevertheless made a last attempt.

"I worked out a basis of negotiations and waited vainly for the Poles last night to send a plenipotentiary. Instead, they tried to communicate through their ambassador.

"If such things can be imposed upon Germany, then it deserves nothing better than to disappear from the political stage.

"I have solemnly stated that we do not demand anything from the western powers, nor do we intend to do so."

The fuehrer charged the deputies with responsibility for their districts.

"I am responsible for the entire nation.

"You in your provinces are similarly responsible.

"No one should come to me and say that sentiment is bad. No one has the right to reject this responsibility.

"We do not have to ask for sentiment, but for duty. The sacrifices asked for are no greater than those made by previous generations."

Appealing to all German women to join the fighting community in iron discipline, he said:

"Germany's youth with happy hearts will fulfill all that is demanded by the Nazi state.

"If we build a community determined never to capitulate, then our will is master. Then we will master any emergency.

"I want to conclude with an oath—the same oath that I began with as an unknown man:

"If our will is so strong that no emergency can bend it any more, then this will and German steel will master any emergency."

The reichstag accorded Hitler a terrific ovation. Goering then said:

"The reichstag, representing the German nation, solidly backs the fuehrer in blind confidence. It is ready for any sacrifice. Our confidence in our army is unlimited. Our confidence in victory is complete.

"Long live the fuehrer."

DOCTORS FINISH EXAMINATION OF 190 INDIGENTS

Physical Tests Required Under County's Aid for Dependent Children Program.

The Richland County Medical society yesterday completed physical examinations of 190 indigent children under 16 and their guardians as provided for under the county's aid for dependent children program.

Twenty Mansfield physicians conducted the examinations Tuesday and Wednesday at General hospital. The cost will be financed from a $100-a-month fund set up by the county.

Dr. Mabel Emery, chairman of the committee in charge of the examinations, said the county fund probably will provide for treatment of defects in urgent cases and pay for the removal of tonsils and necessary dental work.

Others to be Examined.

Other children who are approved for participation in the aid for dependents' fund will be given similar examinations for chest, throat, mouth, eye and ear defects, she said.

Supervision of the program for indigents in the county is in charge of Mrs. Katherine McMichael. Funds for care of the children are provided jointly by the county and state and federal governments.

GERMAN TROOPS RAID POLES ON THREE FRONTS

Warsaw Reports Bombings But Claim Raiders Fail to Cause Extensive Damage.

in Danzig, where Poland has maintained an ammunition depot, were announced repulsed by Polish troops.

It was reported that Grodno, on the East Prussian frontier, had been bombed and that Katowice was heavily bombed, although there was no information as to the extent or the casualties.

Polish officials squarely placed the guilt of starting the war on Germany. Officials said the Polish government yesterday agreed to an act of mediation by the British government, the aim of which was to start conversations between the Polish and German governments in order to avoid war.

Authorities declared that an understanding to this effect was given Berlin late yesterday by the Polish ambassador and that the German answer was an announcement of a long list of conditions.

A few hours later, Polish officials asserted, Germany began war action without further communication.

During the noon hour here, more firing was heard in Warsaw, but there were no developments. Polish planes were patrolling the gray skies over the capital.

(Reuters, British news agency, reported from Warsaw that the main German attack was from East Prussia on a front between Dzialdowo and Wojnitze. Reuters reported German planes attacked Poland in two waves. Seven towns, they said, were bombed on the first raid—Kursk, Gydnia, Thorn, Gialystock, Grodno, Dihivo and Bydgoszoz. The second wave was a few hours later when Warsaw, Krakow, Katowice and Czestowice were bombed.)

Bomb explosions were heard in Warsaw, but no damage or casualties were reported in this city. The explosions seemed to come from eight or 10 miles to the west, where air raiders were believed to be attacking railway communications.

Not Informed of Damage.

Official sources still were without information on the extent of damages or casualties in air raids elsewhere in the country.

The foreign office said German planes had bombed Krakow and Katowice, in southwestern Poland, and also Czestochowa, Tczew and Grudziaz.

It confirmed that fighting had started in Danzig and official sources said German soldiers had attacked Polish defenses near Mlawa, bordering the southern part of East Prussia.

When alarms sounded here, this correspondent just was entering the foreign-office press room to confer with Edward Kulikowski, formerly of the Polish embassy staff in Washington and now the Polish foreign press officer.

All foreign office employes immediately gathered gas mas' and were taken to nearby bomb shelters where they remained for an hour, both men and women exhibiting utmost calm.

Caught in the streets when the second alarm came, I saw police and air raid wardens clearing all traffic. The streets were left virtually deserted. Everyone was forced to take shelter in the nearest building until the "all clear" signal was sounded.

Scores lacking gas masks merely waited calmly in open entrances.

SEE U. S. ENTRY AS 'INEVITABLE'

Mansfielders Not Eager for Another War But Doubt If We Can Stay Out of It.

oppose involvement, it is inevitable.

A few of the younger men refuse to accept it as inevitable, however, and some said that "under no circumstances" would they take up arms in another European conflict.

No one was indifferent. The was was almost the sole topic of conversation today; the taxi driver mentions it as he opens the door for you; the waitress who brings your glass of water talks of it as she takes your order; the girls in the five-and-ten stores agree that it's "awful" and even the smallest of the newsboys meet on the corner and speculate on how long it will last.

Here are some of the Mansfield expressions:

Louis A. Ott, Ohio Brass company—I think all wars are silly and futile and settle nothing. But I don't see how we can keep out of it. We aren't independent enough. If we owned all of the North American continent it would be a different story.

* * *

Harold Burns, Woodhill road, attorney—I don't think we can keep out of a European war. We are certain to become involved sooner or later, and the question is when it would be best in order to protect our own interests. I doubt if any young American WANTS to go to Europe to fight.

* * *

Charles Spreng, 334 North Townview Circle, attorney—I don't think we have any business getting into a European war and I hope we won't.

* * *

Ben Goodenough, Abbeyfeale road, Westinghouse—I think that we should stay out of it—definitely. Wars are so futile. And believe me, I'd put up a fight before I'd go to Europe to fight their battles over there. I'd feel entirely different about a war of invasion, and of course I'd fight to defend my own country and home, but I'm not going to fight over Europe's quarrels.

* * *

Byran D. Styert—222 Newman street, World war veteran—It is high time that England and France take a firm hand against Hitler and put themselves on the offensive rather than the defensive. If the Sovit Union and Germany join in a military way the United States will be bound either in a military way or economically to support the foreign democracies. I doubt very much whether Italy will fight with Germany since the Russo-German peace pact of last week. Italy is a Christian nation and will not bind herself with the Communist party.

Ralph A. Hughes, World war veteran—Hitler's demands have been and are at the present unjustified and it is time for both England and France, both of whom are prepared for war to take force to meet force. I believe that it will be strictly a European war. The United States learned a valuable and expensive lesson in 1918 and I doubt very much whether they will again become involved in any foreign entanglements.

* * *

L. P. McNeil, Mansfield, representative of the Cleveland Press—Hitler must remember the old man at Doorn, the former imperial emperor of Germany now a woodchopper and the little man from Corsica who was exiled and died, both of whom attempted to dominate Europe. It is the inevitable end for the dictator who is now playing his trump card. The United States naturally will become a "silent partner" in any war involving the democracies of Europe because of its economic set-up with those countries.

* * *

G. L. Taylor, farmer—I never did think we could keep out of a war over there and I'm afraid we'll be into it this time if it continues very long. The situation doesn't look very good to me.

* * *

Paul Hamserman, 121 Lexington avenue, teacher—I don't think Hitler has a chance of whipping France and Great Britain if they halt him now as they indicated they would. And unless Hitler is permitted to gain enough power to threaten the United States I doubt if we will get into the war.

* * *

J. O. Hanley, miller—We should try to stay out of the trouble over there but we can't do it. We'll be inveigled into it just as sure as anything.

* * *

R. E. Hutchison, attorney—There's no reason why the United States should get into a war in Europe if our business men and industrialists don't become too selfish and try to profit by it. Of course there is the danger that Hitler might win his demands and threaten our security, thereby drawing us into the conflict.

Glenn L. Bierly, past commander of McVey post American Legion—Hitler's demands on European nations have been utter folly. He has no right in Poland and with war started it is questionable whether it can be readily stopped. The conflict is nothing but the mad ambition of Naziism and Communism to dominate the world, and from this the United States cannot be safe. We have a moral obligation to support the democracies of the world.

* * *

Dr. Hans F. Plaut, German refugee who has been in Mansfield only two months—The situation in Europe is serious to the rest of the world. That I moved with my family from Germany to the United States three years ago when I saw what was coming should express to people of this country what I think about Hitler.

* * *

Rev. H. W. Petersen, superintendent of the Mansfield district of Methodist churches—Hitler has reached the dilemma of all dictators. He must go forward or abdicate. His course is suicidal—he must lose in the end. His whole policy is a menace not only to the peace of Europe but to civilization. Our neutrality laws should be amended to meet the present crisis, but America should remain calm.

* * *

Jesse Beer, principal of Senior high school—I think the war in Europe is one of the greatest tragedies of our time. I hope the people of the Unitel States will not get excited over the situation and will be thoughtful and not rush into something that they will be sorry for. Naturally I am thinking of the young men of America. Hitler made a very serious mistake.

* * *

Russell Gimbel, Friendly House director—If possible the European countries should get together and try to settle their difficulties by more peaceable means. The United States should stay out of the war if at all possible. I feel that we over here do not and never will know the inside of the whole European situation.

HOLDS COMMUNION

PREPARES TO GO TO POLAND'S AID

French Parliament Summoned to Meet Tomorrow; All Troops Called Out.

was called in, as was Admiral Jean Darlan, commander-in-chief of the French navy.

Hitler's swift move in the face of repeated British and French statements that they would go to the aid of Poland in the event she finds it necessary to fight left the next fateful move up to those two countries.

Parisians, quickly informed of the fast-moving events through newspapers, maintained calm. The French capital, although partly evacuated in response to previous government requests, was still teeming with people, the downtown streets crowded.

The Polish ambassador was talking by telephone to the foreign office in Warsaw at the time bombs were reported dropping.

Two German armies were reported to be striking swift, hard blows toward the heart of Poland in an apparent effort to pinch off the corridor before the French and British war machines could be brought into action.

While German warplanes dropped bombs on Polish cities, one German army was reported striking southwest from East Prussia and another moving northeastward from German Silesia. The apparent objective was to form a junction a few miles west of Warsaw, cutting off virtually the western third of Poland which borders on Germany.

German strategy has long been considered to depend upon a quick conquest of Poland, proclaim the situation is under control and then ask Poland's allies what there is to fight about.

Bullitt on Job.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt worked far into the night and was at his office again early this morning. He has been in almost continuous conference with French officials.

Reports reaching here said the army attacking from East Prussia was fanned out in the direction of Dzialdowo, Mlawa and Ciechanow. Ciechanow, the southernmost of these objectives, is only 75 miles north of Warsaw, midway from the German frontier.

There was no news reaching Paris to indicate what resistance was being put up by the Poles or what success was attending German efforts.

Plan Calls for Speed.

It was announced here, however, that the German plan for a "lighting war" called for Nazi troops to make a spectacular advance before the French parliament can meet tomorrow.

Military observers in Paris do not believe Germany will make any overt acts against France or Britain for the moment, preferring to force them to attack along the Rhine frontier. It was not believed, either, that Germany would make any effort to draw Italy into the conflict until such time as France and Britain are definitely involved.

French sources said that Polish Ambassador Josef Lipski at Berlin called on Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop yesterday evening to advise him Poland agreed to direct negotiations.

The same evening, German authorities called in the foreign press and issued a communique listing their demands and stating that Poland had rejected them.

The same sources said Beck had agreed to direct negotiations after the British government, supported by the French, had urged him to do so. It was on instructions of Beck, Polish foreign minister, these sources added, that Lipski early yesterday afternoon solicited an audience with von Ribbentrop.

Under provisions in the ordinance, the volunteer firemen will receive one dollar for each session of the school they attend.

Four Heirs Share Equally as Judge Allots Five Jewels

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Superior Judge Arthur L. Mundo scratched his head and once more studied the problem before him.

The problem was a five-diamond necklace worth $2,025, part of the estate of Hattie Fletcher whose will provided that it was to be divided equally to four beneficiaries. However, each gem had a different value.

The most satisfactory solution would have been to deal four hands of poker to determine the distribution of the five diamonds. This was ruled out when one of the beneficiaries admitted "more than a rudimentary knowledge" of the game.

Judge Mundo finally ruled that the most valuable diamond would go to the first named heir, and so on down the line, with the last named getting the two least costly stones.

All departed satisfied.

Observers Believe Adolf Hitler Victim of Insanity

Hitler Has Resumed World War

THE WORLD WAR, temporarily suspended by the Armistice of November 11, 1918, was resumed today when the forces of Hitlerized Germany attacked Poland and annexed the Free City of Danzig.

Terms of the Versailles treaty, which have previously been ignored by Hitler, now reach the point of testing as to whether any shred of that peace pact shall remain inviolate.

"The dictate of Versailles is not a law for us Germans," Hitler has declared, and his leadership has been in the direction of entirely ignoring the fact that Germany and its allies were defeated in the World war.

Following the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia it became evident that Hitler would shortly make further demands, including the return of Danzig and domination of the Polish Corridor.

Rapidly moving events of the past several weeks have hinged on the attitude of Poland, France and Great Britain toward such further aggression, and the over-night happenings trend strongly toward resumption of a general European war, with a re-militarized Germany aligned against the combined forces of Poland, Great Britain and France.

There had been hope, even through the final days of interchange of views, that a peaceful solution of differences might be found, but the arrogance of Hitler, and the extent of his demands upon Poland, apparently made war inevitable.

Some idea of the type of man with whom France and Great Britain were dealing, in their efforts to avoid conflict, is gained by revelations contained in today's installment of the Washington Merry-Go-Round, which appears elsewhere on this page.

Only the actual occurrences of the next few days will disclose the extent to which European democracies will be required to go in quelling the Hitler onslaught, nor can it now be foretold what the position of the United States will finally be in this resumption of a war that had long been regarded as having been won more than twenty years ago.

Meanwhile, however, sound judgment rather than emotions or passion, should guide the course of this country in its attitude toward the new European conflict.

Considering conditions in Europe, it might appear that every day offers occasion for thanksgiving in this country.

Join the Ranks of Safe Drivers

THOUSANDS of Mansfield and Richland county residents—and millions over the country—are today looking forward happily to a week-end motor trip, lengthened by the Monday holiday.

Dreadful as the thought may be, past records bear out the tragic prediction that, over the United States, several hundred of those who are now planning motor trips will meet death in traffic accidents over the holiday period, and that thousands of injured or bereaved persons will look back on this September 1939 as the saddest time in their life.

Highways will be overburdened with traffic and there will be some careless, incompetent and drunken driving. Under such conditions, careful drivers will keep to moderate speed and will not take chances in passing other cars or in ignoring the warning of the double white lines at danger points.

Railroad grade crossings constitute extra hazards, especially where there are several tracks to be crossed. Make sure when one train has passed that another is not coming from the opposite direction. The National Safety Council gives this advice: "It is a good plan to shift into second gear before you start across any railroad tracks. If you kill your engine you may kill yourself!"

Young persons planning a holiday motor trip should be especially warned by their parents to drive carefully, and not to drive after having partaken of even mild intoxicants. It is a safe assumption that all normal, healthy young people value their lives, yet the way in which some of them drive makes it appear that they are courting death. It is only fair that they should be warned by their parents—or even restrained by law—before it is too late.

Drive carefully—so that you may live to enjoy the recollection of a pleasant trip.

Heavy responsibility rests on those five astrologers who are determining Hitler's course.

Japan's Unpleasant Plight

JAPAN today looks like a split personality. It is ruled not by a unified government but by rival groups representing the army and navy. The army diplomats have been trying for a year to perfect a military alliance between Japan and the German-Italian axis, but the naval diplomats so far have foiled them. This internal dissension is an evidence of serious weakness in Japan.

Meanwhile Uncle Sam has had a hard time getting along with either of the Japanese factions. The formation of the Russo-German pact may serve to show the Japanese people where their true friends may be found, if they will adopt a reasonable and peaceful course.

August behaved so nicely in its concluding days that the shift over into September was scarcely noticeable.

Wisconsin's Bid For Favor

THE Wisconsin department of agriculture has hit upon a novel way to advertise that state's fine cheese, and Miss Edna Tulane, an art student at the state university, is thereby provided with a profitable sideline to her studies.

The department keeps a look-out for national conventions to be attended by prominent men. Then it sends Miss Tulane photographs of outstanding delegates, along with a number of 16-pound cheeses. The artist sets to work, using ordinary woodworking tools and a butcher knife, and sculptures busts of the men selected. These are later presented to the subjects with compliments of the state of Wisconsin.

It is said that the cheese is so good that only a supreme egotist could resist carving and devouring it as soon as he'd finished showing it off to his family.

The national Ku Klux Klan organization is said to be "practically bankrupt," so it has no further excuse for existence if its promoters can't be paid.

With communism and naziism pledging fealty, an Earl Browder and Fritz Kuhn united front may also be in the offing.

Listen, World!

"They Belonged!"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT'S A FINE, brave thing—that movie "The Sun Never Sets" in which Rathbone and young Fairbanks are starring. And as true an answer as you'll find for what ails us in this Modern World. But you won't guess that in the beginning.

It seems just another of those Empire things at the start, with the youngest son of a typically British family rebelling against joining the service which has claimed all his male kin. Everyone's having a whack at the youngster, of course—but the Kid has the answers.

Why should he rot in some forgotten hole, simply because government service has become a family tradition? What have the others gotten for their pains but misery? Not for him! He's going to make himself some money . . . marry his girl . . . live while the living's good!

The family glare. But the battle-scarred old grandad grins and goes back to his fumbling over the huge family map, studded with flags of the far-flung Randolph clan. Since babyhood, the boy has seen that map—but now it takes on new significance.

"What do they all get out of it?" he snorted irritably. "Loneliness . . . poverty . . . fever . . . and nothing to show in the end!"

"MAYBE SO," grunds the old patriarch. "BUT THEY BELONGED!"

"They belonged." The lad chews on the phrase. "They belonged" . . . all those men drudging on savage frontiers . . . slaving in stinking swamps for the glory of—what? Not merely an Empire, but something greater. An idea . . . an idea of civilization that was bigger than any personal plan—or profit, maybe.

Was that enough for a man? Was it worth all he had to give? The youngster wonders . . . wavers . . . decides to give the thing a try. And so goes back to the Gold Coast with his brother, on some dangerous secret governmental mission which even his wife might not know.

THERE'S the break of the yarn, yarn. There are bad hours before its end. A hidden enemy at work—striking like a snake in a nightmare of heat, monotony and meaningless drudgery. A boy blundering — hideously. A man fighting — frantically. A young mother wailing in the agony of premature birth which kills her babe.

But at the end—by way of that damnable, blessed British method of "muddling through" — things come right. The youngster gets wise . . . gulps down his rage and shame . . . shoulders his responsibility . . . stands at last at the family table, glass in hand, to echo that toast which had given life meaning for all his men—

"I GIVE YOU—THE KING!"

GIVEN life meaning . . . that's what's wrong with us today—life's lost its meaning, for most of us. The Machine Age has wiped it out—for what? For nothing! Yes, we make money: fame, some of us. Have fun. Get things. Go places. But somehow it isn't enough. There's something missing.

OUR IMPORTANCE AS MEN—THAT'S WHAT'S MISSING. We aren't men any more, we Americans; we're slaves of a System, cogs in a Machine. And it leaves us empty. No use telling us how Grandpa faced tougher times. Sure he did—as those Empire builders did in "The Sun Never Sets."

But no matter how tough the breaks, our fathers had what it takes to keep a man content—they mattered. They were part of a big show . . . soldiers under the greatest leader men had ever followed. And because they were, their smallest acts had dignity and significance and life never lost its zest.

THEY BELONGED! AND WE CAN BELONG AGAIN, TOO—IF WE DARE!

If we will fight with the old fury, and keep the old faith, we can free ourselves from the System and put the Machine in its place. And, glass in hand, we too can stand and cry—

"WE GIVE YOU—THE KING!"

Brickbats and Bouquets.

Editor News-Journal:

Having been located in Mansfield for some weeks, temporarily filling my duties as a traveling auditor, I have naturally formed opinions, some good, some bad, of your city.

I admire it in a number of ways. The citizens appear to take pride in their homes, and especially of their lawns, and seldom does one notice one that is not well-kept. And of course hills add to the beauty of the town. And do the people really appreciate their wealth of parks? I have never seen a town of this size with so many. I regard South and Middle (what names) parks as beautiful in their naturalness, as can be found anywhere.

The worst brickbat against the town is the lack, or looseness of traffic control. An outsider gains the impression that you have never had any restrictions nor supervision. I have actually seen an autoist ten or twelve feet from an empty curb, leave his car near the middle of busy Mulberry street, while he leisurely sauntered into the postoffice! And motorists will almost impudently "set" in the pedestrian's cross-walk while he is waiting on a light change, forcing people to walk around his car!

And the maze of stop-lights! I doubt if you can find a city of 100,000 with so many. One would judge that not over 25 per cent of the hours now burning would suffice. And don't forget this: the more stop-lights the "laxer" your police become. So-called "school lights" burn the year around! One light in particular is a joke, as passing it two or three dozen times, we have mirthfully noted that we have yet to see a car on the cross street.

Either there is a clever light salesman operating around here, or the city has some money they don't know what to do with. And why can't one turn right on the red light at the subway, when going east? It certainly would relieve congestion at this point.

Here is something one finds almost everywhere. Mansfield people are polite and courteous, except when in their autos.

But for all the above criticisms, I like Mansfield well enough to want to live here sometime, as some of the residential sites are my idea of the ideal place to live, and I hope some day I can do just that.

Filling School Lunch Baskets

—By DR. CLENDENING

MANY a beginning parent will be faced for the first time this year with the task of preparing a school lunch. The school may have a good cafeteria, with food at reasonable prices, but sometimes there is doubt whether sister knows just what is best to pick out, and brother is known to shirk on his fruit and vegetables, so mother will do the nutrition planning herself.

For convenience, get salt, pepper and sugar shakers, paper napkins, spoons and paper containers (much safer than glass containers), and a vacuum bottle, of course.

Give enough fruit. The young body needs lots of energy. Provide some quick energy in the form of candy or sweets and reduce the temptation to gorge on cheap candy at the little shops.

Protein, vegetables, milk, bread and fruits, and sweets—those are the staple requirements.

For some fall lunches, the following are suggested:

Egg sandwiches on entire wheat bread; raspberry jam sandwich on white bread; apple and date salad, lettuce separate; celery hearts; bottle of milk in vacuum bottle; grapes; spice cakes; fudge.

Baked beans with tiny bit of chili sauce or horseradish on entire wheat bread; grated yellow cheese sandwich on white bread; fresh tomato; bottle milk in vacuum bottle; fresh peach; fig cookies; butterscotch.

Cream cheese and orange honey on white bread; meat loaf on entire wheat bread; carrot ball and beet ball salad, lettuce and dressing separate; bottle of milk in vacuum bottle; fresh pear; walnut bar; mints.

Tuna fish on white bread; sliced ham on entire wheat bread; potato salad, lettuce separate; raw carrot strips; bottle of milk in vacuum bottle; plums; devil's food cake; fruit roll.

Pressed beef on entire wheat bread; crushed pineapple and sliced banana on nut bread; apple and celery salad, lettuce separate; chocolate milk in vacuum bottle; gingerbread; marshmallows.

ABBOTT and Costello are two prime comedians of a kind in the "Streets of Paris."

Their marriages happened rather quaintly. They were playing in burlesque. One night after a performance they were wandering back-stage and came upon two ladies of the ensemble brawling. It was one of those hair-pulling affairs which sometimes takes place when two ladies can not see eye to eye on a given subject.

Costello leaped forward and held one of the girls. Abbott held the other. Both comedians purred soft peacemaking philosophies into the young ladies' ears, until everything was straightened out. Then the four of them went to a nearby lunch wagon, partook of some hamburgers with onions, and made an engagement for the next evening. Today the hair-pulling ladies are Mrs. Abbott and Mrs. Costello.

NOW let us have a look at these two backstage Rover boys, and see what makes them rove . . . Costello is a gay young man who learned how to starve in the gray, bitter (but not to him) days of the previous decade, and now is learning how to wax fat without losing the common touch . . . His partner is tall and thin and is the straight man of the act. He guides the conversation in a domineering way, always winding up in a state of complete misunderstanding with his shorter and more rotund friend, who has a moon face and a sad pathetic voice . . . Costello is a refugee from Coney Island, having been born there in a theatrical trunk just 39 years ago, come October 2. Abbott was a Paterson, N. J., bumpkin just 31 years ago last March 6. Neither one climbed very high until their peculiar brand of foolery found a complement in one another's style . . . and after that there isn't any story. There never is when the obstacles have been straddled and nobody is mad about anything.

Words of the Wise

I love virtue very much, but sensible people know that those who talk about it too much never have enough.—Voltaire.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Confidential details of Hitler's conversations with French and British ambassadors last week have been reported to the White House by alert Ambassador Joe Kennedy and tell a significant story.

With Ambassador Coulondre of France, Hitler ranted, raved, paced the floor and got so abusive that the irate diplomat warned him to change his tune. After the interview was over, Coulondre reported to Paris that in his opinion Hitler was mad and war was inevitable immediately.

The Hitler interview with British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson lasted for an entire hour and was not abusive. During one part of it Hitler got positively friendly.

Most important thing which Hitler told Henderson was that he had made an agreement with Stalin to carve up Poland. He said he had come to this conclusion because the Poles were not capable of governing themselves and also were objectionable people.

Regarding colonies, Hitler seemed completely indifferent. He said that he wanted colonies but they could wait a year or so. The only raw materials he wanted immediately, he said, were fats and wood, and these he expected to get from Poland (noted for its forests and its pork).

Henderson reminded Der Fuehrer that there were other ways of getting wood and fats than by conquering Poland, but Hitler wouldn't listen.

Hitler's Ambition.

HITLER continued by telling the British ambassador how the revision of southeast Europe's borders in favor of Germany must be accomplished within 24 months, because, Hitler said, "I have other work to perform."

"All my life," he told Henderson, "I have wanted to be a great painter in oils. I am tired of politics, and as soon as I have carried out my program for Germany, I shall take up my painting. I feel that I have it in my soul to become one of the great artists of the age, and that future historians will remember me not for what I have done for Germany, but for my art."

Hitler also said that when he had revamped the boundaries of central and southeast Europe, then Germany might disarm.

Result of the interview was that Henderson also cabled his government that Hitler was insane and that war could be expected immediately.

Note—Hitler also talked to the French ambassador about his ambition to be an artist, though not in such detail. He did not, however, tell the French about his agreement with Stalin to carve up Poland. Diplomats who have dealt with Hitler say that sometimes he deliberately tells French and British envoys different stories so as to make the two foreign offices believe that one is holding out on the other, thus creating friction.

International Chaff.

PSYCHIATRISTS say that a yearning to be a painter in oils on the part of one who once was a humble house-painter is a sign of insanity in its earlier stages. . . . The justice department has listed 800 anti-Semitic organizations in the United States. . . . Dorothy Thompson, ardent Hitler hater, got a telegram from Father Coughlin the other day asking her good offices in his current predicament. He was not clear as to the nature of the predicament, but presumably it was the anti-Hitler feeling in this country and the fact that he had become identified with anti-Semitism and the Nazi bund. . . . Only four cabinet officers attended a Roosevelt meeting during the height of the European crisis.

Espionage Basis.

FORTHRIGHT Attorney General Frank Murphy did not wait for the international situation to become tense before getting busy on the spy situation.

Securing the president's signature on a special espionage order, he established G-men bases for spy detection at Hawaii, Panama, and Alaska, the latter being the first one in its history. A base will be established in Manila next week.

It was no accident that Germany's prize passenger liner, the Bremen, was detained in New York. Nor was the action taken on the responsibility of New York officials. They were acting on orders from Washington, and those orders came direct from the White House.

It was decided to give Hitler a little dose of his own medicine and do a little American strong-arming of Germany. Acting upon Murphy's advice, it was agreed that there was ample law to hold the Bremen up for various routine inspections until Hitler played his final cards in Europe.

Woodring's War.

SECRETARY of War Woodring is a troubled man. As if the European situation wasn't bad enough, he has a hot personal war on his hands right at home. Cause of the disturbance is a real estate deal of Woodring's in Waterford, Va., which has aroused the residents of that historic village.

Proud of their old colonial houses, Waterford citizens have spent time and money restoring them. So they were delighted to learn that the secretary of war had purchased one of their treasured dwellings, and looked forward to his becoming an honored resident of Waterford.

But the town's joy was short-lived. Woodring, they learned, not only had no intention of living in the town but intended to dismantle the historic house and move it to booming Alexandria, Va., directly across the Potomac from Washington.

Waterford was dumfounded. A mass meeting was called to discuss the "outrage," and it was decided that a delegation of leading citizens should call on Woodring and protest. The committee had no trouble seeing him, but no luck in changing his mind.

"I'm sorry, gentlemen," he said. "It's my house. I bought it and I'll do what I please with it."

Woodring plans to rent the house, not live in it himself. Meanwhile Waterfordites are trying to figure out some way to stop him. They are even considering arresting the crew of workmen Woodring sends and running them out of town.

The Field Spider

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

NOW that the late summer evenings are still warm, the days clear and the sun shines hot, the common garden spider finds it a gorgeous working season. Every morning the pasture and the lawn are misty with diaphanous webs on which the dewdrops sparkle in the sun. One forenoon I sat upon the sidelines and watched one of these busy spiders at her work. No motion picture ever showed a scene more thrilling.

At first she faced me at a distance of three feet from where I lay upon the grassy corner of a plowed field. Through my magnifying glasses I saw her shaggy jaws with hornlike claw extensions. Her head was black and round and on the front I counted seven eyes, lying like beads partially embedded in a cushion. The body was underslung upon four pairs of hairy jointed legs.

The spider mounted upon a clover leaf that grew five inches high, turned her left side toward me and tilted her abdomen to a thirty degree angle. A constantly lengthening thread began to stretch upon the wind in the direction of a nearby timothy stalk. The free end lashed and stuck.

I thought I counted six small protruding things. Each one of these has a hundred openings. . . beneath a microscope they are visible. This makes 600 strands to form a single thread. No wonder a spider can swing herself with confidence from the highest branch to the ground.

This particular spider walked across the single thread like a circus acrobat, then stopped and spun a web to bear her back to a stone thence eastward to a root along the furrow and from there to the place of beginning. From this she made threads at different points, all meeting at the center. Her web was like a wheel with thirty spokes. Then from the center she made a spiral strand that clung to the spokes until there were fifteen rounds, the outer one extending to the foundation.

At the center she wound a closer mesh, then drew one long strand free from all the rest and hid behind a leaf at the far end. I caught a fly and threw it in on this design. Unhesitatingly the spider ran and grabbed it. I saw the horny fangs pierce the body of the fly and it lay still. She took her victim to the center of the web and feasted on the kill. I wondered how many insects would wander into this "pretty parlor" in a single day, and how many days the snaring web would remain intact.

Her timid weakling of a husband is seldom seen about the premises. If he does come near and she spies him, his chances of a long and natural life are much abbreviated. She is the large, all powerful one—the dictator of the household—and has never outlived her cannibalistic instincts.

ONE CHANGE ON EACH PENSION BOARD CERTAIN

Council to Name New Members to Police, Firemen's Groups Sept. 5.

At least one change in the personnel of both the police and firemen's pension boards was assured today as preparations were made for the annual re-organization meetings late this month of both groups.

With two of its members not candidates for office at the November election, council at its Sept. 5 meeting will elect one new member to each board. The other council member on each group is expected to be renamed.

A new member will be selected to replace James E. Crum, one of the two councilmen on the firemen's pension board. Crum did not run for re-election and his council term expires Dec. 31. The other councilman on the firemen's board is George C. Kyle.

On the police pension board Lester D. Hunt will retire having been defeated for the nomination at the primary. The other council representative on the board is Russell D. Porch.

Elect Sept. 11.

Both police and firemen will elect two members from their respective departments to represent them on the six-men boards Sept. 11.

Police are represented at present by Capt. John Miller and Lieut Bruce Friday. On the firemen's board are Capt. Frank R. Stahl of company No. 4 and Clarence O. Hall, fireman at company No. 1.

The four representatives of the firemen's pension board will meet Sept. 25 to re-organize and select two citizens to complete the six-man committee. Present citizens' representatives are Charles C. Beelman, 356 Davis road, and Tolman Burns, 45 South Linden road.

A similar meeting will be held by police on Sept. 28. Present representatives are Earl K. Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, and Leroy Ish, 396 Oak street.

Even We Don't Know the Secret of Our Bourbon Springs Whisky

So we're mighty careful never to change from our good old "country ways"

Look for the Fiddle Bottle

Some folks think it's the wonderful limestone water that sparkles from our Bourbon Springs, down here in the hills of Nelson County. Some, the genuine Old Fashioned Sour Mash method we use. Others, the generations of distilling skill bred into our people.

Whatever it is, we wind up with a mighty fine drinking whisky . . . rich and mellow, with a flavor and bouquet folks say you just can't match. So we take no chances; we stick to our old, slow ways—used here for 119 years.

LAND UNCLAIMED

BOISE, Ida.—(U.P.)—Idaho should claim from the federal government more than 40,000 acres of federal grant lands never claimed since they were granted to state when admitted to the union in 1890, State Forester Franklin Girard contends.

THEATERS

BELIEVE it or not, but it looks as if "Gone With The Wind" is about to jell at last. Director Flemming, who suffered over it, has left Hollywood for a three-month vacation, which he wouldn't have done if there were any more shooting to do on the picture. It has been "cut to the bone" of 24,000 feet—just twice the length of a regular feature. . . . There is the dickens to pay at Warners studio. They want either Jane Wyman or Jane Bryan to change her name to Janet. Because newspapers and exhibitors can't keep the names straight. . . . The original "Four Daughters" threatens to go on and on. The Lane sisters are doing a third picture, "Four Wives."

Popular Trio.

Three box office names are brought together for "In Name Only," with the screen's loveliest brunet and blond fighting over a popular hero. The trio is Kay Frances, Carole Lombard and Cary Grant. The picture holds considerable interest for Mansfielders at this time because of the fact that Miss Frances was a guest here several weeks ago. For the first time in her screen career she plays the "villain," a calculating, social climbing wife, who values money more than her husband's happiness. Miss Lombard, as the "other woman," puts up a battle for the man she loves.

Spectacular Production.

Alexander Korda's lavish and spectacular Technicolor drama, "Four Feathers" will be an attraction at the Madison for four days, starting tomorrow. This English-made picture tells an interesting story of a young Britisher who hated war and war traditions, despite the fact that his family were all of the army. On the eve of his regiment embarking for India, he resigns, and by messenger he receives four white feathers from old friends—the symbol of cowardice. How he makes each man take back his feather, after incredible feats of heroism, is the theme of the story. The players are all English, only C. Aubrey Smith being well known here. There will be just one feature at the Madison the first half of the week.

Range Romance.

Hopalong Cassidy's campaign to prevent an escaped convict from conspiring with frontier outlaws against his own wife piles one action thrill on top of another in "Renegade Trail," a Western action drama at the Ritz. This is another range romance with William Boyd as Hoppy and Russell Hayden and George Hayes as his saddle buddies. Charlotte Wynters is Boyd's newest leading lady. Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Henry Armetta and Slim Summerville in "Winner Take All" is another adventure of the Gambinis.

Villain De Luxe.

C. Henry Gordon, who has been in pictures longer than most people remember, has played every type of villain imaginable—but always a superior type of rascal. He's never shoddy or common, but always suave and sinister, and his role of William Fornay in "Trapped In The Sky" is no exception. Here he is another mysterious smoothie, interested chiefly in bringing destruction to a new electric bombing plane. Jack Holt, Ralph Morgan and Katherine DeMille are also in the cast. "Escape By Night" is a sort of "Miracle Man" story. Both features are at the Park.

LOSES FINGER

Fireman Injured Using Drill Press While Off Duty.

Capt. Leo T. Saltzgaber of Central fire station was in the General hospital today suffering from a hand injury sustained while working on a drill press yesterday while off duty.

Hospital attendants who reported his condition as "good" said the little finger of his left hand had to be amputated due to the extent of the injury.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger said he was told Saltzgaber was hurt working on a drill press at the home of a relative when his hand caught in the machinery.

Capt. William Gutekunst of company No. 3 is confined to his home with a foot injury suffered a week ago when he stepped upon a nail while off duty, Seeburger reported.

CHAPTER XXV.

"I think it's a fool idea," Roy answered bluntly, "and I don't believe in divorce. I think people should stick to a bargain once they've made it."

Elizabeth laughed softly.

"Darling! How old-fashioned of you," she teased him. "I am really quite shocked."

He answered, still in the same blunt way.

"No you're not. In your heart you agree with what I say, and you think that a bargain's a bargain. You're just pretending not to!"

He suddenly turned to look at her.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked wistfully. "Half the time now you're acting—like someone on the stage! Saying things you don't mean—and even—sometimes I believe you only laugh so that you won't cry."

* * *

He stopped, his color rising in embarrassment. "Now say you hate me!" he challenged her.

But to his surprise Elizabeth suddenly laid her slender hand on his.

"I think I like you better—just as at this moment—than I've ever liked you before," she said, and then, as his fingers impulsively closed round hers, she drew her hand away.

"Why are we so serious all at once?" she asked with faint irritation. "It must be the sunset. Look what a glorious sunset there is, just as though the sky has been making up its face with the contents of a most expensive beauty-box!"

Roy stood up abruptly.

"Now you're acting again," he said sharply to Elizabeth, and broke off as his sister came running down the stairs.

"Has Kim arrived!" Barbara demanded. "I thought I heard his voice."

Roy had begun to whistle with an air of elaborate indifference, but he stopped to say theatrically:

"Yes, he has come! He has come! Ring the joy-bells! Tell the glad news! Our hero has arrived!"

"Idiot!" Barbara said, but she was smiling as she cast a critical glance at herself in a nearby mirror, and then, "Oh, look at the sunset!" she cried, and her eyes grew dreamy.

Roy was busily mixing a concoction which he called "Breath of Life" when Lawless came down the stairs.

"Anyone looked at the sunset?" he asked. "It's worth seeing."

"I was just saying how wonderful it is," Barbara told him, and Roy broke in:

"We've all been saying how wonderful it is—in our different ways. Elizabeth called it a painted lady, or words to that effect; and I was driven to remember that there is a form of liquid refreshment which cannot be ignored."

"Elizabeth called it a painted lady, did she?" Lawless said deliberately.

"No, I didn't," she answered coolly. "I said the sky looked as if had been making up its face with the aid of an expensive beauty-box. Rather a good description, don't you think?"

She met his eyes steadily enough, but hers fell away first, almost as if they were ashamed.

* * *

Dinner was announced and Elizabeth slipped her hand through Roy's arm.

"May we go in together?" she enquired gaily. "Or am I still in disgrace?"

He bent down to whisper a reply, and with a comical little smile, Barbara turned to Lawless.

"Shall we do likewise?" she suggested.

He gave her his arm with a mocking bow, and as they crossed the wide hall he asked:

"Is Elizabeth in disgrace?"

Barbara shrugged her shoulders.

"Oh, not really! She lost her temper about something, that's all, and she fired up at us all like a tiger-cat, but she didn't really mean it, poor darling. She's always a bit touchy where Penelope is concerned."

"She seems cheerful enough now," he submitted dryly.

"She's all right," Barbara agreed. And then lowering her voice, "But she has altered, hasn't she? Though, of course, you wouldn't know! Mother was only saying this morning that she would hardly recognize her. Mother thinks it's being in Paris so long."

"I imagine she must have had rather a dull time in Paris."

"I don't think so," Barbara answered. "But you can't tell—she talks so wildly—poor Betty!" she added sympathetically.

Lawless glanced down at her.

"Why do you say that?"

"I don't quite know—except that somehow I always feel she isn't happy. Not that she ever complains as a rule she frightfully gay, but perhaps you'll see what I mean. "Then, as if she was anxious to change the subject: "We're going over to the Beaseley's after dinner. They were here last night, and we had a whale of a time. We didn't go to bed till 3."

"It sounds wildly exciting," Lawless said dryly.

He looked at Elizabeth across the dinner table and quickly away again, but not before he had recognized the picture she made.

The table was lit by candles in heavy silver sconces and the soft light flickered on her vivid face and lovely hair.

She was wearing a white frock, cut square at the neck, with a frilly skirt and a sash of many shades of blue, which fell away in long streamers to the floor, and Lawless suddenly thought of their first meeting in the woods when she had been stealing primroses. Just a child she had seemed to him then, and he remembered the quaint wistfulness of her voice when she said, speaking of the flowers: "I hope they won't mind being taken to London. "And again: " . . . It seems dreadful ever to forget people—some day not to love them any more."

STATE CLOSES GATES TONIGHT ON 89TH FAIR

Mansfield District Scores Again as Final List of Winners Are Named.

After today the 89th Ohio State fair will be history and the page will be particularly bright with the record of more than a quarter of a million paid admissions. In other years the attendance was greater but this year's edict of "no passes" boosted the paid admissions.

As to whether the fair this year will break even or make money—it hasn't for a number of years—Manager Win Kinnan said he didn't want to make a statement until he had the figures to back it up.

Today, the final session of the fair, has been dedicated to Ohio newspaper men and women, and a press luncheon, with Governor Bricker as a guest, was to be held on the mezzanine of the Horticulture building.

The sheep-shearing finals, horse racing and special events for juniors will wind up the program.

7 VOLUMES OF FICTION HEAD LIBRARY LIST

'The Captain's Wife,' by Storm Jameson, 'Andrews to the Lions' Among Novels.

A new novel by Storm Jameson is among the seven books of fiction added to the shelves of the Public library this week.

It is THE CAPTAIN'S WIFE and portrays Sylvia Russell as a proud restless, fiercely dominating woman. She cannot forget the glowing future paved for her by her mother, and is determined that her own children shall justify her own promising past. Hence she binds thme to her emotionally as she herself has always been enslaved by her mother.

In ANDREW TO THE LIONS, Harold Webber Freeman tells the story of a young English instructor who goes to Italy and falls in love with the Latin way of life. His charm for women makes him the prey of two romantic widows, but he cannot take them seriously.

SO WE'LL LIVE by Priscilla Hovey Wright is a novel of life in a small New England town. The story concerns two families united through marriage: the Farnhams, small shopkeepers, and the Dexters, wealthy mill owners.

The other four fiction volumes are STEP IN THE DARK, White; REGATTA MYSTERY, Christie; COWBOY, SAY YOUR PRAYERS, Drago; and ANNE OF INGLESIDE, Montgomery.

Tells Story of Farm Labor.

In FACTORIES IN THE FIELD, Carey McWilliams presents the same story in a set of facts that is presented fictionally in John Steinbeck's GRAPES OF WRATH. His book tells the story of the migratory farm labor in California, tracing it from the period of Spanish exploitation, to the present dust-bowl refugees' tent cities.

His research shows that many of the existent wrongs are due to nearly 70 years of exploitation of minority racial and other groups by powerful cliques of landowners.

AMERICA'S YESTERDAY by Frederick Martin Brown is an authoritative book for the general reader, giving the complete story of the sources of the human race on this continent.

STORY OF THE ROAD by John Walter Gregory is a history of road building from ancient times to the modern day. It has been revised by C. J. Gregory, son of the author, because of the great developments in roads since his father's death in 1932.

Other non-fiction this week includes:

TOWN CRIMELESS

MALIN, Ore.— (U.P.) —This city has not had a single arrest, crime or even fracture of the law for two years. Some people give City Marshal Dick Stevenson credit for scaring anyone out of the idea of breaking the law, but Mayor A. Kalina says, "We just don't have any trouble here, that's all."
